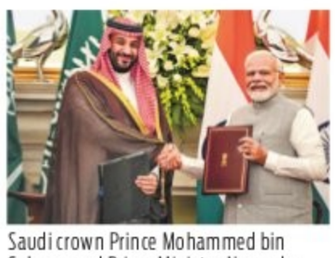
India, Saudi to expedite Maha refinery project

Eight pacts signed to intensify cooperation

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi



Saudi crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman and Prime Minister Narendra Modi in New Delhi on Monday | PTI

INDIA and Saudi Arabia on Monday decided to expedite implementation of the $50 billion West Coast refinery project during talks between Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed Bin Salman Bin Abdulaziz Al-Saud. The refinery cum petrochemical project in Maharashtra was planned in 2015.

Both sides also identifed energy, defence, semiconductor and space as areas for intensified cooperation.

They agreed to diversify the current status of their hydrocarbons relationship into a "comprehensive energy partnership". The two countries signed eight pacts to boost cooperation in a whole range of areas. Trade in local currencies was part of the talks but just at the discussion stage as of now.

A joint statement said both sides also stressed the importance of strengthening security cooperation to combating terrorism and its financing. They rejected any attempt to link terrorism to any particular race, religion or culture.

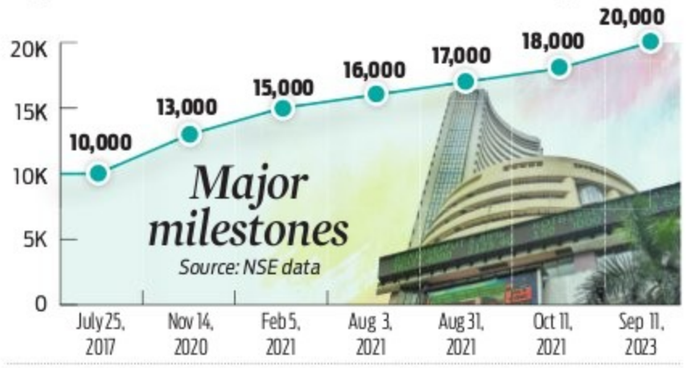
Saudi Prince Mohammad bin Salman is on a state visit to India. He stayed back after attending the G20 meeting during the weekend. India's exports to Saudi increased to $10.72 billion in 2022-23 from $8.8 billion in 2021-22, while its imports went up to $42 billion in 2022-23 from $34.1 billion in FY22, mainly on the back of oil shipments. Saudi investments in India stood at $3.22 billion as of June 23.

"The scope for cooperation in grid connectivity, renewable energy, food security, semiconductors, supply chains is immense," Modi said. Saudi Arabia is one of India's most important strategic partners for India, he added.

At the G20 Summit, India, the US, Saudi Arabia and the European Union announced an agreement to set up a India-Middle East-Europe shipping and railway connectivity corridor in a counter to China's Belt and Rail initiative.

Cautious optimism as Nifty scales 20,000-mark

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi



THE NSE benchmark index, Nifty50, on Monday scripted history by scaling 20,000 points. It took a little over six years for the 50-share index to gallop from 10,000 to 20,000 points, but the jump from 19,000 to 20,000 was achieved in 52 sessions.

This milestone comes on the back of the Indian equity market closing on a high note for the seventh consecutive session, during which the Sensex and the Nifty50 surged more than 3% each. Bringing cheer to investors, the market capitalisation of all BSE-listed firms touched a fresh peak of ₹324.26 lakh crore on Monday.

Notably, the rally comes amid unfavourable market conditions — muted global cues, foreign outflow from Indian stocks, strengthening of the US dollar, rising bond yields, and crude oil prices trading at multi-month highs. All these developments are generally negative for India's equity market.

For the day, Nifty50 hit a high of 20,008 but settled lower at 19,996.35, surging 176.40 points, or 0.89%. The Sensex rose more than 528.17 points, or 0.79%, to close at 67,127. Monday's Nifty boost came from Adani stocks. Two Nifty constituents — Adani Enterprises and Adani Ports (APSEZ) — surged 4% and 7%, respectively, after the promoter group raised stake in the two firms. According to market experts, the fresh rally can be attributed to favourable domestic cues such as positive GDP numbers for Q1FY24, robust GST collections and the purchasing managers' index for August. However, they warned that the current rally, especially in the small-cap and mid-cap stocks, may be overstretched.

Since late March 2023, the Sensex and the Nifty50 have surged by 17-18% each. Mid-cap and small-cap indices have outpaced the mainline indexes by 47% during this period. P13

Autorickshaw drivers take out a rally before the private transport bandh was called off, in Bengaluru on Monday | SHASHIDHAR BYRAPPA

THE Federation of Karnataka State Private Transport Associations called off its Bengaluru bandh on Monday afternoon after Transport Minister Ramalinga Reddy assured that 27 of its 30 demands will be fulfilled. With his assurance, autorickshaws, cabs and private buses were back on the road.

However, Nataraj Sharma, nominated president of the federation, said the state government must give a written undertaking on Tuesday that it will fulfil the 27 demands as assured by the transport minister or else, the federation will launch a hunger strike from Wednesday.

Addressing protesters at Freedom Park, Reddy said, "Steps will be taken to fulfil most of the demands of the federation. The government will establish a welfare board for drivers. It will also open an Indira canteen at Kempegowda International Airport for them. Senior advocates will be roped in to fight the cases against app-based ride-hailing aggregators and bike-taxi operators who have got a stay which is stopping the Transport Department from acting against them."

The minister said that he will hold talks with Housing Minister Zameer Ahmed Khan on the demand for a housing scheme for drivers. P4

HC dismisses Prajwal's plea

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Monday dismissed the application filed by JDS leader Prajwal Revanna seeking a stay on the earlier order declaring his election as Hassan MP null and void. Prajwal had filed an interlocutory application seeking a stay on the earlier order till he filed an appeal in the Supreme Court.

Justice K Natarajan pronounced the order, which was reserved, after hearing the arguments of senior counsels representing Prajwal and petitioner Devaraje Gowda on the interlocutory application.

While Prajwal's counsel pointed out provisions of law for the stay, Gowda's counsel submitted that this could not be done as it had been communicated to the Lok Sabha.

PASSENGERS spilling out of the arrival terminals at Kempegowda International Airport found, to their consternation, that they could not hire taxis, and had to depend on BMTC's Vayu Vajra fleet. Cabs were off the roads due to the bandh called by private transport associations.

To its credit, BMTC did a commendable job by running 55 extra trips to and from the city to ensure flyers had comfortable journeys. Passengers, especially those returning from official trips, were shocked that their regular cabs failed to turn up, despite assuring they would reach the airport. When this reporter visited T2, crowds were spilling into the bus bay. "We don't permit more than 40 passengers but due to the extraordinary circumstances, we allowed many more to board each bus today. There was heavy demand," said a bus conductor. Every bus departing from the terminal was bursting at its seams up to 1.30pm.

A top BMTC official told TNIE, "On an average, we run 980 one-way trips to or from the airport and transport 12,000 passengers. On Monday, we ran an additional 55 trips, and transported an additional 3,000 passengers."

Two employees of airport operator Bangalore International Airport Limited were at the spot to monitor the travel scene along with a few BMTC staffers. "Sometimes, four or five flights arrive within an hour. However, the crowds were dispersed quickly," an official said. Buses from T1 were sent to T2 or vice-versa to pick up passengers, depending on the rush. S Jayavelu, vice-president of an MNC firm said, "I came by a Vistara flight from Mumbai. My company cab was expected to take me home but backed out at the last minute. I am waiting for a friend to pick me up now." Avnish R, a banker, was waiting to head to Koramangala. "The cab I had booked kept assuring he would reach, but did not turn up. I am now waiting for a bus to Koramangala," he said. Mahesh D, who had landed from Hyderabad around 3pm, preferred to take a cab and was ready to wait till 6.30pm. "My friend has promised to come and pick me up after work," he said.

For those like HR professional Astha, it was bus as usual. "I always use Vayu Vajra from airport. It is no different for me today," she said.

Former Indian cricketer Anil Kumble shares a selfie of his journey in a Vayu Vajra from Kempegowda International Airport on Monday. Pic was posted by the cricketer on 'X'.

Anil Kumble takes BMTC, refuses to sit

Bengaluru: Former Indian cricketer and coach Anil Kumble also took BMTC Vayu Vajra from the airport. The cricketer posted a picture travelling in a BMTC bus on social media X that went viral. The bus conductor Ramesh Naganna, who said, "As there were no private means of transport, our bus was full and Kumble didn't have a seat. The other passengers and I tried to offer him a seat, but he chose to travel standing. All through the journey, he was like a normal passenger interacting with fellow passengers and we didn't feel like we had a celebrity travelling with us." Kumble boarded the bus from Terminal-2 of the airport at around 11 am and got down at Jayanagar. Transport Minister Ramalinga Reddy shared the photo on his X handle and said, "Let's all follow his lead and support public transport for a greener and more sustainable city. BMTC is committed to providing a safe, comfortable, and affordable travel experience."

Some autos, cabs operate, fleece customers

SPEAKING to TNIE, Nataraj Sharma said, "Of the 30 demands, the transport minister has assured to fulfil 27. A decision on other three demands — to reimburse costs of women passengers in private buses under the Shakti scheme, providing monthly compensation to auto drivers and tax concession to private buses — will have to be taken by Chief Minister Siddaramaiah."

MANY AFFECTED

Thousands of people, who depend on private transport for their commute, were inconvenienced as autos, cabs and private buses remained off the road from Sunday midnight in view of the bandh called by the federation.

People who landed at Kranti Veera Sangolli Rayanna railway station, Yeshwanthpur railway station, Kempegowda bus stand and Kempegowda International Airport had to depend on state-run BMTC buses and Metro rail to reach their respective destinations.

Despite the bandh, a few autos and cabs were seen operating on Monday morning, defying the risk of being targeted. In fact, there were a few cases of assaults on such auto and cab drivers in Bengaluru.

Taking advantage of the bandh, many autorickshaw and cab drivers fleeced the helpless commuters. School and college students, whose institutions had not declared a holiday, also faced hardships. Many schools, however, declared a holiday, fearing inconvenience to students and their parents.

Need to penalise violators of SWM rules: HC to BBMP

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

NOTING that Bruhat Bangalore Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) is required to act a little more and come out with an 'Out of the Box' approach, the Karnataka High Court on Monday, said that the penalty imposed on the violators of Solid Waste Management Rules in the city is too meagre to work as a deterrence measure and hence the BBMP may also consider initiating penal action against the violators taking recourse to appropriate provisions to IPC as an additional measure.

A division bench of Chief Justice Prasanna B Varale and Justice Krishna S Dixit passed the order after going through the response filed by the BBMP stating that it has levied a penalty of Rs 11.66 crores between September 2019 to August 2023 from violators, in response to the directions issued by the court on a batch of PILs filed in 2012.

"In our opinion, if the total amount of penalty collected by the BBMP from violators is seen, it can safely be said that the penalty is too meagre to work as a deterrence measure... The stakeholders BBMP and the state government are required to consider this aspect afresh. It may not be out of place to state here that merely imposing a penalty may not serve the purpose in all the cases.

"They require an additional measure by way of deterrence so that the violators may not commit violation repeatedly or act casually considering the meagre amount of penalty," the court said.

The court also said that BBMP may also take steps to implement the user fee collection system for solid waste management as early as possible, as there is no pre-requisite to obtaining permission from the government to introduce the said system.

The court also said that the citizens are also required to act dutifully by following the provisions of the rules.

Protesters attack cabbies who defied strike

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

PROTESTING members of the Federation of Karnataka State Private Transport Association assaulted and abused auto and cab drivers who defied the strike. Several videos surfaced on social media platform X from different areas of the city, showing protesters waylaying and deflating tyres, and damaging private vehicles operating on the road.

Bengaluru City police registered a total of 13 cases and apprehended 12 persons involved. PETER VIDAL

12th September : My top sign today is Taurus, the celestial representative of domesticity. Some astrologers have a down on this sign, but that's because they don't understand what it's about. In my opinion, it can be the best sign for clearing out rubbish and nonsense of all sorts - and getting to the truth. Taureans are some of my favourite people!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
Don't let a minor matter get you down today. Commonsense lunar alignments advise you that it's now perfectly possible to get around any little irritation by simply taking the appropriate practical steps. The answer may well be staring you right in the face!

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
Work will probably bring you a great deal of satisfaction. The whole point about the current period is the deep desire for greater fulfilment and a more intense sense of personal meaning. You'll have to listen carefully to partners - probably because they're right!

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
There is still so much emphasis on business involvements that you may be all hyped-up. At the very heart of the matter lies an urge for material security that may actually smother lesser motivations. In other words, you might get financial needs tangled-up with emotional desires.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Refuse to be drawn over family matters, because whatever you say or do now, circumstances will soon change. In fact, within a month you may have completely altered some of your deeply-held ideas. And, as your opinions change, so will your behaviour - and so will your future.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
You should be able to make other people smile, bringing a dose of your legendary good humour into the day's proceedings. We will all be better off if you take an optimistic course and turn away from petty problems. After all, you really do have so much to give to the world.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
This is one of those days when you could be waiting for something to happen. Don't expect plans to work out as expected. If they do, all well and good; if they don't, do appreciate the chance for a change. And try and make some time for social relaxation.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
Although the heavens are being remarkably good to you, I have no doubt that you feel rather undermined. Your biggest problem is probably not what other people say, but your own tendency to be too self-critical. Go easy on yourself and you'll be better placed to make the most of welcome invitations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Expect the unexpected today, and welcome it when it comes. The next Sun-Moon angle will urge you to embrace all that is new and untried. If serious matters are to be dealt with, then you should bring friends into the picture - there's someone close who already knows what you need to know!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
Can you afford to make an error of judgment now? I don't think you can. The margin of safety is so slight that you must play it safe. In love, you may be too concerned with partners' potential status and prestige. But what seems so desirable today may seem very different tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
This is no time to be devious. Not only are you likely to gain most from being open and straightforward, you are also due to benefit from someone else's honesty. It's truth time for Capricorn! You're being presented with an amazing opportunity to look right into your deepest feelings and motives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
You, more than most people, deserve a chance to take your mind off recent struggles. One word of advice is to be aware of the legal or ethical issues that may have a bearing on your future plans. Every thing is up for grabs, but a cautious approach could get you everything you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
Current lunar alignments are responsible for making this a busy period of year, yet you may find that your current efforts come to nought. This may be because it is not yet the right moment to move towards completion. There is, after all, a time to move on and a time to stay still.

Woman jumps off auto as driver takes different route

PRAVEEN KUMAR @ Bengaluru

A 25-year-old data analyst from Kerala fractured her right hand and injured her hip after jumping off a speeding autorickshaw at Pai Layout in Mahadevapura police limits on Saturday afternoon.

Roshini Joseph, the victim, who lives in a paying guest facility near Hope Farm in Prashanth Layout, hired the auto from near a gym at B Narayanapura to Brindavan Layout in Vijinapura.

After she got into the auto, the driver took a different route instead of the regular one. Suspecting foul play, she asked the driver to stop, but he kept speeding. Sensing trouble, she jumped off the speeding auto around 2.45 pm at Pai Layout on ITPL Road, Roshini said.

She said she has been advised bed rest for four weeks and is unable to move. "On the map, the travel time was showing just nine minutes. But he kept driving in a different direction for nearly 15 minutes. There were no vehicles or people on the road. After I jumped off the auto, the driver just sped away. The driver, in his late 20s, spoke Hindi," she said.

Unable to find any help, she called her sister who took her to hospital. "I am in extreme pain. I have hurt my hip badly and casting has been done to my fractured right hand," she said.

Roshini said she was looking for a house as her mother wanted to stay with her in the city. She was supposed to meet a realtor to see houses at Mahadevapura on that day.

Following a complaint, the police checked the CCTV footage in the vicinity but could not clearly see the registration number of the autorickshaw properly, according to sources.

"The driver is yet to be arrested. A case of causing hurt by an act endangering life or personal safety of others (IPC 337) has been registered against the auto driver," said a police officer.

Kenyan woman flyer caught with cocaine worth ₹12 crore

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

The cocaine was concealed in capsules

A woman of Kenyan origin was nabbed by the Central Industrial Security Force (CISF) for attempting to smuggle 1.02 kg of high-grade cocaine at Bengaluru airport on Monday morning. Accused Ageng' O Caroline Agola had concealed the contraband in capsules inside her private parts and undergarments.

She has been booked under the Narcotics Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act by the Narcotics Control Bureau, said sources.

The passenger had arrived from Addis Ababa by the Ethiopian Airlines flight (ET 690) which reached the Kempegowda International Airport by 11.09 am.

According to airport sources, CISF cop Laxmi Meena got suspicious while frisking Agola. "The cop conducted a pat down search and took her to a separate room and asked her to remove her clothes. Many capsules were found in her undergarment. One of the capsules was open and we realised that she was carrying high-quality cocaine," a source said.

Agola was then taken to the Aster Medical Centre and after a thorough check, medical staff found more capsules concealed inside her private parts. "On interrogation, she confessed she had swallowed a few capsules too and so was taken to the Victorial Hospital where an ultrasound scan of her abdomen was done to verify her statement," another source said. Information on the number of capsules found has not been provided.

"The cocaine is of extremely superior quality and has a market value of nearly Rs 12 crore," said an individual familiar with such drugs.

"The seized substance has been handed over to the NCB," he added. Interrogation is on to detect if she was operating on her own or is part of a cartel.

BBMP LAB BLAZE

Group D worker to be made a scapegoat?

BBMP to submit report to govt on Sept 15

MOHAMMED YACOOB @ Bengaluru

A Group D worker is likely to be made accountable for last month's fire tragedy at the BBMP head office in which chief engineer CM Shivakumar died and eight others were injured, according to police and Palike sources.

Soon after the fire broke out at the Palike's Quality Assurance Laboratory, the police filed a complaint and began an investigation.

A senior police officer from the Central Division said preliminary investigation revealed that the Group D worker was at fault as he was handling inflammable chemicals at that time. His negligence led to the blaze.

The officer said the Group D worker was not supposed to do this work at all. However, the worker defended himself stating that he did it on instructions from his seniors.

The police said once the injured staffers fully recovered, their statements will be taken and added to the report.

A BBMP official from the engineering section said even the report by BBMP Engineer-in-Chief BS Prahalad stated that negligence on the part of officials working on the ground floor of the laboratory led to the blaze.

"Chemical expert Anjanappa from RV College of Engineering will give his report on chemical components found at the laboratory. The BBMP will submit its report to the state government on September 15. Even the BBMP's internal inquiry cites negligence on the part of the Group D worker as the reason for the blaze," said the BBMP official.

The fire broke out at the laboratory around 5 pm on August 11 and nine people were seriously injured. On August 12, two assistant executive engineers and the Group D worker of the Palike were detained. They were released on police station bail. Prahalad had filed a complaint with Halasuru Gate police in connection with the blaze. The investigations are still on.

A new way to detect, kill cancer cells

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

SCIENTISTS at the Indian Institute of Science (IISc) have found a new way to detect and kill cancer cells, especially those which form a solid tumour mass. They have created hybrid nanoparticles made of gold and copper sulphide which can kill cancer cells using heat, and enable detection of different types of cancer using sound waves.

In a study published in ACS Applied Nano Materials, the scientists decided to combine gold and copper sulphide into nanoparticles which were tested on lung cancer and cervical cancer cell lines.

The copper sulphide nanoparticles have previously received attention for their application in cancer diagnosis, while gold nanoparticles, which can be chemically modified to target cancer cells, have shown anticancer effects. "These particles have photothermal (light and heat), oxidative stress, and photoacoustic (light and sound) properties," said Jaya Prakash, Assistant Professor, IISc, and corresponding author, according to a release from IISc.

When light is shone on these hybrid nanoparticles, they absorb the light and generate heat, which can kill cancer cells. These nanoparticles also produce singlet oxygen atoms that are toxic to the cancer cells.

Both these mechanisms help kill the cancer cells. The nanoparticles can aid in diagnosing certain cancers. Current methods, including computerized tomography (CT) and magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) scans require trained radiology professionals to decipher the images. However, the photoacoustic property of the nanoparticles allows them to absorb light and generate ultrasound waves, which can be used to detect cancer cells with high contrast once the particles reach them.

Scans generated from ultrasound waves can also provide better clarity and can be used to measure the oxygen saturation in the tumour. Researchers used a novel reduction method to deposit tiny seeds of gold on to the copper sulphide surface that can travel inside the tissues easily and reach the tumours. Further studies are under way to determine the safety of the procedure.

PVT TRANSPORT OPERATORS STRIKE

WHILE Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar admitted that the Shakti scheme has hit the business of private transport operators and assured to resolve their issues, Chief Minister Siddaramaiah clarified that their demand to bear the loss they are suffering owing to the scheme cannot be fulfilled.

Shivakumar, who was addressing reporters in Bengaluru on Monday, said that the Shakti scheme has hit private bus operators. He assured to take care of the problems faced by private bus owners. The KPCC chief also added that the government is aware of the problems faced by autorickshaw drivers and they will find a solution. He further said that threatening the government or causing inconvenience to the public are not a good development. "We will listen to their woes and give solutions. Shakti scheme has helped a lot of women," Shivakumar added. He said drivers of private cab aggregators taking part in the bandh seems to be politically motivated.

Meanwhile, speaking to reporters in Mysuru, Siddaramaiah said private transporters' demand cannot be met by the State Government. The CM said that in a democracy one cannot be stopped from protesting. "We have heard the woes of private transport operators. They have explained to us that due to Shakti scheme, they are incurring losses. They are asking us to bear this loss, this is such an impossible demand. We cannot fulfil this demand of theirs," he added.

Meanwhile, the BJP slammed the Congress State Government. The BJP Karnataka handle of 'X' has posted that though private operators were warning that they are going to call for a protest, the State Government did not bother to listen to them. "Transport Minister Ramalinga Reddy has told the media that they need Rs 360 crore to repay private transporters and they do not have funds for the same. The Congress government has funds to give it to one family, to woo their party high command. But to give money to the poor, the government does not have funds," it stated.

It will cover full-time and part-time workers with Swiggy, Zomato, e-commerce companies such as Amazon, Flipkart, BigBasket among others. "The 'Karnataka State Gig Workers Insurance Scheme' is to be implemented with immediate effect through the Karnataka State Unorganised Workers' Social Security Board," the order stated. It is considered a breakthrough for workers who put their lives at risk while delivering goods and services. Though the state labour department has no data on the number of workers, the Centre's Niti Aayog furnished the same, suggesting the necessity of the social security initiative. Gig workers registered on the government's official web portal will benefit from the initiative. Legal heirs of the beneficiaries and siblings of unmarried workers are eligible for compensation. They can apply directly on the Seva Sindhu portal with the necessary documents, including E-Labour Identity Card number.

Siddu goes all guns blazing against BJP over Cauvery

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Mysuru

CHIEF Minister Siddaramaiah on Monday accused the BJP of politicising the Cauvery river water issue and accusing the State Government of releasing excess water to Tamil Nadu.

Speaking to reporters here, the CM said that the BJP state leaders at the all-party meeting said that they would not indulge in politics on the issue, but they visited the KRS reservoir and alleged that Karnataka released 63tmcft of water to Tamil Nadu. Noting that till August-end 86tmcft of water had to be released to Tamil Nadu, the CM said, "We have not released even half of it."

"We are not giving water to Tamil Nadu with joy. We want to protect our farmers. We are duty-bound to supply drinking water to Bengaluru, Mysuru and other towns in the Cauvery basin. We should also protect the crops in the region. But we had to release water because of the Cauvery Water Management Authority," he added. He said that Tamil Nadu has filed a petition before the Supreme Court and Karnataka will present its case based on facts on September 21. "We will not let down our farmers," he added.

Siddaramaiah said that Karnataka has sought the Prime Minister's appointment to seek his intervention to clear the Mekedatu balancing reservoir project and apprise him of the Cauvery row. "But no appointment has been granted as of now," he added. He said the 25 BJP MPs from Karnataka have not raised the issue. "The BJP government at the Centre has not approved the Mekedatu project. Tamil Nadu should not raise objections as Karnataka releases TN's share of water on any given normal monsoon year," he added.

On drought situation in Karnataka, Siddaramaiah said 62 taluks are facing drought-like conditions as per NDRF norms and they have sought a report on 132 taluks that will be placed before the Cabinet to decide on the number of drought-affected taluks.

CM: Even my corpse will not join BJP

MYSURU: Reiterating that he is always against communal politics and political parties with communal agenda, CM Siddaramaiah on Monday said that even his corpse will not join the BJP. On JDS leader HD Kumaraswamy's statement that Siddaramaiah had once knocked on the doors of the BJP, the CM said, "Since the beginning, I have always fought against communalism and communal parties. If I am in power or no, it does not matter... but there is no compromise with any communal leaders or parties." "I might have met BJP veteran LK Advani once and even met Union Home Minister Amit Shah. That does not mean I have compromised with my ideology. Kumaraswamy to protect his family politics is trying to join hands with BJP," the CM said. Asserting that 'One Nation, One Election' is not practical, he said, "The Karnataka results have shattered the hopes of BJP and has made them think of 'One Nation' One Election'... " ENS

2-day meeting to discuss drought, devpt

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka government has called for an important meeting on Tuesday and Wednesday to take up important issues challenging the state, especially drought and development. All deputy commissioners, chief executive officers, district ministers, chief secretary, additional chief secretaries and principal secretaries will take part.

"We will discuss drought and other important development issues," said Transport Minister Ramalinga Reddy. IT/BT Minister Priyank Kharge seconded it as an important meeting.

Regarding drought, some experts have suggested that the government wait for till September-end, when the final picture will become clear, as some areas have received rain during the month. The government has said guidelines need to be changed because if the farming community needs to benefit, norms will have to be eased.

On September 15, the government is expected to focus on issues related to the Home department, where police officers from across the state are expected to participate.

'Disgruntled' Hariprasad embarks on Karnataka tour

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI
@ Bengaluru

SENIOR Congress MLC BK Hariprasad, who has been sulking after being kept out of the Siddaramaiah cabinet, has launched a statewide tour.

On Saturday, he made a scathing but veiled attack on CM Siddaramaiah at the Ediga community's convention at Palace Grounds here. The community's religious head Pranavananda Swamiji organised the event for Hariprasad where he stated that he will unite and mobilise the Backward Classes for what is politically due to them.

On Sunday, Hariprasad attended a mass marriage function at Talabala in Koppal district. There, he attacked Malur MLA KY Nanjegowda, a supporter of Siddaramaiah, even as the MLA warned that he will complain to the Congress brass against him (Hariprasad) for his remarks against the party and the CM. "He (the MLA) is a scamster. Let him first come clean. Let him complain against me," Hariprasad said.

When his attention was drawn to BJP leader Basanagouda Patil Yatnal's statement that the Siddaramaiah government will collapse in three months, Hariprasad hit back stating that the saffron party is day-dreaming. "There is no bickering in our party. We have internal democracy, which is why I am speaking openly," he said.

Meanwhile, RDPR Minister Priyank Kharge said, "Hariprasad is a senior leader who is closely associated with the party's state leaders and the high command. The matter will be settled at that level," he added.

Interestingly, DyCM DK Shivakumar did not react to Hariprasad's statements.

According to sources, unless the party high command intervenes, Hariprasad will continue his state tour mobilising various sections of society against Siddaramaiah.

Meanwhile, Industries Minister MB Patil said the party is taking note of Hariprasad's attack on the CM. It will take action against him at an appropriate time.

A fascinating experience: Netherlands PM after using UPI on Church Street

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

DUTCH Prime Minister Mark Rutte on Monday said that the Netherlands is keen to enhance economic cooperation with Karnataka. Rutte, who arrived in Bengaluru after attending the G20 meetings and held talks with Prime Minister Narendra Modi in the national capital, attended a CEO roundtable with industry leaders and Karnataka Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar, Industries Minister MB Patil, IT/BT Minister Priyank Kharge and senior officers in Bengaluru. He visited Church Street where he used the UPI application at a cafe and termed it as a "fascinating experience".

In the CEO Round Table Meeting at Vidhana Soudha, he said Karnataka is home to 9% of Dutch investments in India with a presence of over 25 Dutch companies.

"It was a very successful meeting. I was impressed with the DyCM and the ministers. They were really focused not just on restating the policies, but making them practical. That made a big impression on the Dutch business community," he told reporters. The Netherlands PM also said that he was happy with the G20 New Delhi Declaration.

Karnataka DyCM Shivakumar invited the Dutch companies to invest in Karnataka to strengthen ties and explore new avenues for growth. "Karnataka is committed to fostering stronger economic bonds with the Netherlands as part of its broader strategy to enhance global engagement and promote economic development within the state," the DyCM said.

The state government is keen to attract Dutch investments in sectors such as AI, technology, agriculture, renewable energy, and healthcare, he said.

The Netherlands delegation discussed several matters and sought the implementation of a transparent and fair excise policy. According to a statement issued by the government during the CEO round table, Radovan Sikorsky, Chief Financial Officer and Board Member, Heineken, the popular beer brand, had said they were looking for a fair and transparent regulatory regime that promotes the growth of the beer category in Karnataka.

Karnataka Industries Minister MB Patil said with enhanced Ease of Doing Business, sectoral policies such as Aerospace & Defense, E-mobility, E-R&D, ESDM, Data Centre, and Textiles, Karnataka offers a conducive business environment and a skilled workforce to support Dutch investors.

Congress throws 'Kamala Dal' jibe at JDS; Kumaraswamy hits back

2 MLAs object to tie-up

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE JDS and the ruling Congress were involved in a political slugfest over the JDS-BJP alliance talks. "He (HD Kumaraswamy) had said that he would dissolve the party if he lost the election, but now he is going to dissolve "secularism". Better if the name of Janata Dal is changed to "Kamala Dal"! the INC Karnataka posted on 'X'.

"The state Congress, after hearing the talk of JDS-BJP alliance, is in a frenzy and is wringing its hands, as bewildered that it cannot win even a single seat in the Lok Sabha elections. It has also been distorting the statement of HD Kumaraswamy about dissolution of the party and also the truth," the JDS hit back.

Meanwhile, Kumaraswamy alleged that the Congress guarantees are having a negative impact on a section of people, including taxi and autorickshaw drivers.

"The severity of the 'side effect' of state @INCKarnataka government guarantees are hitting the people. Inequality and bias in distribution of government facilities has created anarchy. As a result of the unscientific, half-baked 'Shakti' project, the private traffic system has been destroyed today," he posted on 'X'. "The government should consider the demands of the private transport unions with humanity, keeping prestige aside...," he added.

RAMAKRISHNA BADSESHI
@ Kalaburagi

TWO JDS MLAs of Kalyana Karnataka region have raised objections to the JDS top brass forging an alliance with the BJP, and contest the Lok Sabha elections on seat-sharing basis and oppose the misrule of the Congress in the state.

Gurmitkal MLA Sharangouda Patil Kandakur and Devadurga MLA Kariyamma expressed dissatisfaction over the decision of party leaders to form the alliance. Kandakur and Kariyamma are the only two JDS MLAs to be elected from Kalyana Karnataka region, comprising seven districts and 41 constituencies.

Speaking to the media in Yadgir on Sunday, Patil had said he had fought the Congress and BJP in the assembly elections, and people had blessed him. "What answer should I give my voters?" he asked. "If the alliance is forged only for the Lok Sabha elections, it is alright, though it affects the party's prospects of growing strong."

> What answer should I give my voters? If the alliance is forged only for the Lok Sabha elections, it is alright, though it affects the party's prospects of growing strong

> Sharanagouda Patil Kandakur, MLA

Patil said many MLAs have a similar opinion, but clarified that he would abide by the party decision. He had remained absent at the JDS state-level meeting on Sunday, citing personal reasons.

Kariyamma said senior leaders might have taken the decision to make the base strong for the Lok Sabha elections. It would be difficult to get more seats if JDS goes it alone, she felt. Kariyamma clarified that there would be no compromise with the Congress or BJP in her constituency.

Former minister Bandeppa Kashampur, a close associate of former CM HD Kumaraswamy, defended the decision to forge an alliance with BJP. Bandeppa told TNIE that party supremo HD Deve Gowda, who had always opposed such an alliance, has given the green signal. "Understand how much mental agony he and the party might have experienced with the Congress. Due to a conspiracy, Kumaraswamy had to step down as chief minister. The alliance will benefit both parties, and dissatisfaction among a few MLAs will be ironed out," he said.

Isolated Naidu sent feelers to DKS?

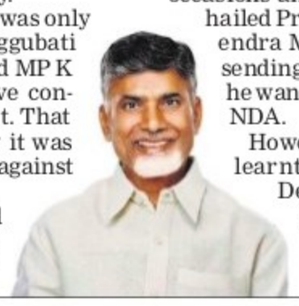
Neither NDA nor I.N.D.I.A alliance has made any major comment on former AP CM's arrest

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Vijayawada

THE arrest and subsequent remand of TDP supremo and former Andhra Pradesh chief minister N Chandrababu Naidu for his alleged role in the AP State Skill Development Corporation scam made it to the national headlines for two consecutive days. However, the deafening silence from across the political spectrum is striking.

It appears that Naidu, who had once played a key role in national politics, stands isolated at the most challenging time of his career. Besides being in alliance with the BJP between 2014 and 2019, and with the Congress during the 2019 General Election, the 73-year-old had enjoyed the camaraderie of Trinamool Congress president and West Bengal CM Mamata Banerjee, NCP patriarch Sharad Pawar, RJD veteran Lalu Yadav, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi, and a host of other leaders across the country.

Nonetheless, it was only BJP AP chief Daggubati Purandeswari and MP K Laxman who have condemned his arrest. That too, only the way it was done, not the case against him per se.



Naidu had pulled out of the NDA before the 2019 polls ostensibly over the denial of special category status to AP and joined hands with the Congress. Following the poll debacle, he has been trying to patch up with the BJP and distanced himself from the Opposition camp led by the Congress. The TDP has extended support to the Modi government in Parliament on several occasions and Naidu has even hailed Prime Minister Narendra Modi's leadership, sending clear indications he wants to be back in the NDA.

However, it is reliably learnt that he rang up Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar recently around the same time that Telangana Congress chief Revanth Reddy paid a visit to the Karnataka strongman. What transpired between Naidu and Shivakumar is unclear, but sources observed he could be hedging his bets. Naidu's advocate Siddharth Luthra also happens to be Shivakumar's legal eagle. Thus far, the Congress hasn't publicly backed Naidu.

Mamata remarks

When contacted, a senior TDP leader rued that the BJP has a soft corner for the YSRC, which has 22 MPs in the Lok Sabha and 11 in the Rajya Sabha. "The BJP-led Centre has the support of the YSRC, as well as the TDP. I.N.D.I.A alliance is avoiding both the parties," he said, suggesting that the TDP has no support from either the NDA or the Congress-led opposition camp.

In some sort of respite to the TDP, West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Monday condemned the manner in which Naidu was arrested, as she slammed the Centre following the ED summons to TMC MP Abhishek Banerjee in the alleged school recruitment scam.

"Abhishek is being unnecessarily harassed. Similarly, Naidu was arrested in a way that is not at all fair. There should not be such vindictiveness, it might boomerang," she remarked at a presser. Sources in the TDP felt it was a welcome statement by Mamata, but opined it is just not enough.

CPM senior leader BV Raghavulu, too, objected to the way Naidu was arrested, but quickly added that action should be taken if charges against him were proved.

CPI state leaders, though, lent their support to Naidu as did BJP's ally Jana Sena. The BJP confined itself to a statement and refused to even support the bandh observed by the TDP on Monday.

Against this backdrop, TDP sources said the party will try to first take up agitations in the state and simultaneously, think of a way to garner support at the national level.

Post Naidu's arrest, son Lokesh takes TDP reins

TDP general secretary Nara Lokesh, who suspended his 'Yuva Galam' padayatra following the arrest of the party supremo and his father N Chandrababu Naidu, took the reins in the absence of the party chief and held the strategy committee meeting with senior leaders on Monday. He discussed the future course of action in the wake of his father's arrest and to lead the party. Lokesh reviewed the protests being taken up by the TDP across the state denouncing Naidu's arrest and after taking feedback from party leaders, he is said to have decided to take up some more programmes in the days to come. "It was Naidu who used to chair the strategy committee meetings. In his absence, Lokesh took the lead by joining the meeting online from Rajamahendravaram," a senior leader of the TDP said. Lokesh, who suspended his Yuva Galam padayatra in Razole constituency on Saturday, stayed back at Rajamahendravaram.

Fearing crop loss, 65-year-old farmer hangs himself in Sirsi

SIRSI (UTTARA KANNADA): A farmer hanged himself at his house in Hebbuthi village of Sirsi taluk in Uttara Kannada district. The deceased Jagadish Chenappa (65) is said to have taken the extreme step fearing his inability to repay Rs 3 lakh loan which he had borrowed from a co-operative bank in Andagi village. According to Natraj, Deputy Director, Department of Agriculture, Chenappa cultivated paddy on one acre and 34 guntas of land and arecanut on one acre of land for which he borrowed the loan. Officials said this is the second death reported in the district so far after a similar incident in Mundgod. "In the wake of scanty rainfall, the state government has ordered a ground truthing exercise in the district to assess the rainfall scarcity and crop loss. We are doing it," they said. Ground truth is information that is known to be real or true, provided by direct observation and measurement. Surprisingly, the district has received the least rainfall for the first time so far. "This is the first time such a severe rainfall deficit has been recorded. There was excess rainfall in July, but things changed in August. A rain deficit of 62 per cent was recorded in August and 50 per cent in September so far," they added.

Foresters yet to treat injured jumbo Bheema

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Hassan

THE forest department are yet to continue its operation to treat 40-year-old Bheema, the elephant that was severely injured in a tussle.

Unable to walk due to severe pain, the elephant was sighted standing at the same spot in a coffee estate near Alur since a couple of days. It may be recalled that the forest department had undertaken an operation to tranquilise Bheema in order to treat it, during which Venkatesh, the sharpshooter, was killed by the already injured elephant. The incident had taken place on August 31, and since then the injured elephant is awaiting treatment.

Meanwhile, the forest department has allegedly stopped its operation of treating the pachyderm after the incident. Now, locals are urging the department to treat the injured elephant and have also shared its pictures on social media. According to DCF Mohan Kumar, the department is planning to start the operation to treat the elephant. The villagers are also frustrated with elephants continuously destroying standing crops in parts of Magge Rayarakoppalu in Alur taluk and parts of Hettur in Sakleshpur.

5 killed, 8 injured in bus-truck collision

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chitradurga

FIVE passengers died and eight sustained injuries in an accident between a KKRTC bus and a truck near Gollahalli Gate of Hiriyur taluk on the Bidar-Chamarajnagar NH-150A on Monday.

The deceased are identified as Ravi (23) and Narsanna (5) from Raichur; Paravatamma (50) from Bengaluru, Mabamma (35) and Ramesh (28), said Superintendent of Police Dharmender Kumar Meena. Out of the eight injured, five have been admitted to the Chitradurga district hospital and three are being treated at Challakere general hospital.

The mangled remains of the KKRTC bus that rammed a truck on the Bidar-Chamarajnagar NH-150A on Monday | EXPRESS

Passengers stated that the KKRTC driver was rash and overspeeding. Prima facie, he attempted to overtake a truck, thereby crashing into it. The bus was on its way to Bengaluru from Raichur when the accident occurred. The bus hit the truck at the rear.

Superintendent of Police Meena said the police department usually identifies black spots and takes corrective measures to overcome them in case of road accidents. However, in the present accident, the road was straight and the accident had nothing to do with black spots.

Meanwhile, the bus driver has been taken into custody for investigation. Aymangala police registered a complaint and are investigating the incident.

Pay respect to forest martyrs by clearing encroachments: Min

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

FOREST, Environment and Ecology Minister Eshwar Khandre on Monday told forest department officials that if they wanted to pay their respects to martyrs, they must clear all encroachments and sternly act against encroachers.

Accompanied by Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and Waqf and Minorities Welfare Minister Zameer Ahmed Khan, Khandre participated in a Forest Martyrs Day programme in the city. The day is observed to pay respects to forest staffers who died on duty.

Khandre said that so far, 57 forest staffers have died in man-elephant conflicts, during elephant rescue operations, and even while protecting wildlife and forest produce from poachers. "If you want to pay real tribute to martyrs, you should prosecute all those who have encroached forest land. The day should be observed to instil confidence amongst others, and to the family members of the martyrs," he said.

Khandre also recollected recent incidents in which elephant task force member Girish and sharpshooter Venkatesh were killed. He said the government will take all measures to ensure forest conservation. He pointed that the Western Ghats is a biodiversity hotspot and is home to endemic and endangered species, due to which its protection is vital.

In Karnataka, Forest Martyrs Day was observed every year on November 11, as a mark of respect to senior IFS officer P Srinivasan, who was killed by forest brigand Veerappan in 1991.

However, after a Central Government order was issued in 2013, National Forest Martyrs Day is observed every year on September 11, in memory of the Khejarli Massacre of 1730, when 359 Bishnoi tribals were killed while trying to save trees in Rajasthan, during the rule of Maharaja Abhai Singh.

UNIFIED CRYPTO REGULATION NOW CLOSER TO REALITY

The proposed global regulatory framework for cryptocurrencies inched closer to finality thanks to last week's consensus on the G20 New Delhi Declaration. The group endorsed recommendations of the IMF-Financial Stability Board (FSB) to regulate, supervise and oversee cryptocurrencies with a unified set of regulations. The proposed cross-border framework operates on the principle of the same activity, same risk, and same regulation and establishes a minimum baseline that jurisdictions must comply with. Notably, the proposed framework makes it easier to operate across borders and helps exchange information to help tamp down money laundering and terror financing. The G20 finance ministers and central bank governors will meet again next month to take the proposal further.

Over the past decade, cryptocurrencies have gained prominence and have about 420 million users, according to crypto exchange Coinbase. Yet, their regulation, be it of crypto exchanges or crypto transactions, remains a concern. Though they are subject to scrutiny, regulation varies from country to country. Last October, the OECD introduced the Crypto-Asset Reporting Framework (CARF) to give tax authorities greater visibility into crypto transactions. The European Union adopted these norms in May 2023, and all 27 European nations must adhere to the CARF, setting procedures for automatic information sharing. Along similar lines, the G20, for the first time, is formulating uniform regulations to be adopted by all jurisdictions, including the EU. However, several countries are outside the G20 remit, and it is unclear if they will be asked to enforce the group's regulations. It'll also be interesting to see how countries with laws governing cryptos integrate the proposed G20 regulations.

As Coinbase notes, cryptocurrencies were born out of ideological opposition to centralised financial control and grew into a global asset class relatively unburdened by the strictures governing other products like stocks, bonds or currencies. Though they gained popularity, their value is often subject to volatility. For instance, in 2021, the total market value of crypto-assets grew 3.5-fold, only to shrink a year later from a peak of $2.6 trillion to under $1 trillion, according to the IMF. It even warned against using crypto as legal tender, especially in unstable economies. While policymakers' attempts to fix the grey areas that helped crypto assets thrive are welcome, they must balance innovation and regulation.

REVISED STRUCTURE OF THE CEC PROBLEMATIC

The Central Empowered Committee (CEC), created after a Supreme Court order in 2002, is now a permanent entity. The Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change (MoEFCC) on September 5 issued a gazette notification on the committee's reconstitution, which has now sparked widespread apprehensions. A statutory body with jurisdiction spanning the entire country, the CEC played a crucial role in monitoring the implementation of the apex court's orders. It also closely watched conservation non-compliances vis-à-vis forests, the environment and wildlife. In the last two decades, it perused many important mining, infrastructure and conservation cases and reported to the SC, bringing essential reforms in the sector. However, it remained an ad hoc body. On May 18, the apex court suggested it become a permanent institution. "We find that rather than CEC functioning as an ad hoc body, it functioning as a permanent body would be in the interest of all the stakeholders," the SC stated in its August 18 order, allowing the MoEFCC to reconstitute the CEC. It is the reconstitution which has raised hackles. In its new avatar, the CEC will report to the MoEFCC as it will be under the ministry's administrative control.

Analysts view this as a clear dilution of the autonomy of the committee, which earlier functioned directly under the SC. Besides, the CEC would now comprise a chairperson, a member secretary and three expert members, all of whom the MoEFCC will nominate. Similarly, in a departure from the committee's original form, the reconstitution has dispensed with the provision of having two NGOs as members of the statutory body. But these are not the only issues that have invited criticism. The notification clearly states that if the suggestions or recommendations of the CEC are not acceptable to the Central or state governments, the final word would belong to the Centre only.

After the contentious Forest (Conservation) Amendment Act 2023, the recalibrated CEC signals that the Centre will wield enormous authority in matters of compliance, which are crucial to many projects currently being implemented. It must not be forgotten that even governments overstep the lines in their pursuit of development, and keeping the statutory safeguards strong would be in the country's greater interest.

QUICK TAKE

CLOSE GENDER PAY GAP

The UK's Birmingham stares at bankruptcy, unable to pay compensation worth millions of pounds to former women employees of the city council for lack of gender parity in salaries. The courts found the city council breached equality clauses of employment contracts of mainly cleaners, cooks and care staff. There's a lesson for India, where the World Inequality Report 2022 estimated women earn only 18% of total labour income, men mopping up the rest. The primary reasons are occupational segregation, hiring biases, and women's preoccupation with unpaid homework. MGNREGA has helped reduce the pay gap in villages. Bridging the skills gap can improve women's salaries in urban areas.

NEW DELHI SUMMIT DECLARATION: G20 COMING OF AGE

P S RAGHAVAN

Distinguished Fellow, Vivekananda International Foundation, and a former diplomat

The issue of the G20 New Delhi Leaders' Declaration, on day one of the two-day Summit, is no less than a black swan event. With the geopolitical polarisation of the West and Russia-China, it appeared inconceivable that a meeting including them could produce a consensus, particularly on Ukraine.

Several countries had signalled that they expected an explicit condemnation of Russia's invasion of Ukraine. Russia, supported by China, insisted it would not accept even the formulation that had found reluctant consensus at the G20 in Bali a year ago, since both the military situation and the political environment had changed since then.

In the event, the final text was a substantial departure from the Bali version, but in unexpected ways. The condemnation of the Russian invasion of Ukraine, which was included in the Bali declaration as a quote from a UN General Assembly resolution, was dropped; the resolution was mentioned only by its number.

The New Delhi declaration did contain obiter dicta on international law: states must act in accordance with the purposes and principles of the UN Charter, refrain from the threat or use of force to seek territorial acquisition, and respect the political independence of states. But as long as they are not specifically named, countries find it possible to live with such general assertions in multilateral documents, pretending that they do not apply to them.

The Bali formulation on Ukrainian grain exports through the Black Sea has also been significantly altered, though this has not attracted much notice. In 2022, Turkiye and the UN had brokered a pair of agreements, by which Ukrainian food exports could be shipped out of its ports through a safe "corridor", while Russian exports from its ports would also be enabled. These agreements lapse on September 15. Russia has dug in its heels on their extension, alleging that they have not been fairly implemented: while Ukrainian exports continued, the Russian exports under the deal were hampered because shippers and insurers, deterred by western sanctions, did not lift cargo from Russia's ports.

The Delhi Declaration has, through a re-ordering of the Bali formulation, subtly emphasised that both agreements have to be implemented in tandem, "to ensure the immediate and unimpeded deliveries of grain, foodstuffs, and fertilisers/inputs from the Russian Federation and Ukraine".

Extracting a consensus from the jaws of a Russia-West standoff was, unquestionably, a triumph for Indian diplomacy. It harnessed the support of a number of developing countries for this. Some are reluctant to stifle their national interests for causes that are not of critical interest to them. Others are frustrated that geopolitical confrontation is sucking the oxygen out of initiatives to deal with major, even existential, issues confronting them.

SOUMYADIP SINHA

These sentiments were expressed at the virtual 'Voice of the Global South' summit that India hosted in January, at which as many as 125 countries articulated their perspectives. Countries also want to hedge against pressures that abridged their autonomy of action: this was manifest in the stampede of applicants last month to join BRICS.

The pervasive mood in much of the developing world is, therefore, not to let geopolitical confrontation stymie progress on issues of major consequence for them. India's diplomacy persuaded the major powers to acknowledge this mood and accept a compromise formulation on Ukraine. This enabled intensive discussions on issues that impact the developing world, including sustainable development, climate justice, debt vulnerabilities, supply chains, infrastructure, connectivity, digital public infrastructure, blue economy and green energy. The Delhi Declaration documents convergences as well as suggestions that may not have full unanimity, something which is inevitable in a disparate group of countries across geographies and developmental stages.

Current global projections show that the bulk of economic growth in the decades ahead will come from the developing world, with a large chunk of it from Africa. Yet, the G20 comprised only a single African country and that too the one which did not have the largest economy in the continent. India's campaign to induct the African Union into the G20 succeeded in redressing this imbalance.

Russia's President Vladimir Putin and China's President Xi Jinping were no-shows in Delhi. This did not take anything away from the summit's outcome. Veteran Russian foreign minister Sergei Lavrov would have worked the corridors of Bharat Mandapam for an outcome document that Russia did not have much to complain about. Though Xi's absence disappointed President Biden (he publicly remarked twice about it), EAM Jaishankar pointed out that what really matters is that a country is represented and contributes, adding that China had, in fact, been "very supportive of the various outcomes".

It has been said of India's G20 project that a routine multilateral meeting has been hyped up for domestic political purposes. The simple truth is that no government anywhere would pass up the opportunity of domestic credit for its international successes.

At the same time, the geographical dispersion and thematic spread of events served to expose the governments, businesses and media of G20 countries to diverse regions of India and the opportunities in them; this comes at a time when we seek to significantly broaden our global economic engagement, using our geographical, economic and demographic advantages. It was imaginative public diplomacy.

G20 summits began in 2008, when the industrialised economies (G7) acknowledged the importance of major developing economies in addressing global economic and financial challenges. In practice, the G7 has mostly dominated G20 proceedings. But this time in New Delhi, we saw the Global South contribute more to shaping outcomes, bringing in an element of multipolarity in decision-making.

The devil is in the details; follow-up on intentions in multilateral documents is notoriously lax. But we may be seeing the emergence of the G20 from the shadow of the G7 to truly become the premier forum for international economic cooperation, which it had been billed to be at inception. If this trend continues, India would have midwifed the emergence.

'CASTE PRIDE' AND THE NEED FOR AN EQUITABLE SOCIETY

C P SURENDRAN

Poet, novelist, and screenplay writer. His latest novel is One Love and the Many Lives of Osip B

Journalist-author Manoj Mitta's Caste Pride: Battles for Equality in Hindu India documents the modern history (late 18th century, with the East India Company beginning to take an active interest in political matters) of India's legal and constitutional efforts to reform Hinduism.

Mitta does a monumental job of it, not only bringing between the covers an impressive amount of inflammable information buried in court files, newspaper reports, and Parliament records, but also setting it alight with a readability normally associated with bestsellers.

In any given situation, Mitta is on the side of the victims, the depressed classes. But sometimes his sympathies lead to a kind of purblind situation. For example, in the fascinating chapter, 'A Wedding Without A Brahmin', which discusses the 'watandar joshis' or 'hereditary office-holder(s), on the exercise and benefit of that office in his assigned locality', the officiating priest is shown for the leech he is, as the layman could not hold 'social and religious events in his family' without the Brahmin in question in play.

The reformist movement against the Joshi practice was led by the likes of Jotirao Phule in Maharashtra and Periyar in Tamil Nadu. And, on the legislative side, it ended up in the framing of the Hindu Marriage Act of 1955. Both Mitta and we are right to dismiss the practice of the ubiquitous Joshis—mouthing mantras to sanctify a marriage—as parasitic and superfluous.

Surely the Joshi, too, presumably must eat and earn for himself and his family? The subsistence economy characteristic of the community, for all the power it wielded, hardly ever features in Mitta's discussions. Is there any reliable data on the subject? That might even explain to an extent the persistence of Brahminic exploitation. But that would change the portrait of the villains a little, rendering them human, not just Brahmin.

The spine and heart of Caste Pride is Untouchability. While the chapter on 'Temple Entry' of the depressed classes is as detailed and dramatic as ever, the section titled 'Impunity For Violence' narrates incidents like the mass killings of Harijans (42 burned alive in 1968 in Kilvenmani, Tanjore); the Belchhi killings (11 killed in 1977 in Bihar), prompting the then PM Indira Gandhi to ride to the spot on an elephant to negotiate the monsoon floods, the photo opportunity marking her return to power; the Bathani Tola incident (20 Harijans and Muslims killed in 1996 in Bhojpur); and the police shooting in Ramabai Nagar (named after B R Ambedkar's wife) in Bombay which ended the lives of 10 Dalits in 1997.

Mitta does a first-rate job of turning his meticulous research into gripping narration, the details themselves contributing to the drama, transforming facts into live theatre.

> Have we moved far enough from our atrocious, casteist past? In all probability, the depressed classes have never been so sought after as now by politicians

Mitta's thesis is that an inherently casteist and status quo-driven judiciary of a free country denied the depressed classes justice despite a Constitution that swore by it. Yes. But it did strike me that there must be at least a few cases where the underprivileged fought and got justice. I imagine listing them would not fit in with Mitta's generally subaltern scheme of things.

Have we moved far enough from our atrocious, casteist past? In all probability, the depressed classes have never been so sought after as now by politicians. Yet, last fortnight, the DMK leader Udhayanidhi Stalin said Sanatana Dharma must be 'eradicated'; he compared it to an epidemic. Prime Minister Narendra Modi responded that a 'proper answer must be given.'

Well, a proper answer is a more equitable society, politically and socially. The founding fathers of this country faced a problem of priority. The upper caste-led Congress Party thought political freedom was the first priority in its fight against the British. This was why social legislation took a back seat, and the British could play their divisive game, playing one community against another. That politics still continues in one form or another. A revival of Hindu values, as seems happening now, may not help correct the imbalance ingrained in the anti-colonial fight either.

One of the intellectual giants who dissented from the Congress party's view then was Dr B R Ambedkar, whom both the BJP and the Congress have been competing to co-opt posthumously; a dead Ambedkar would be more useful than a live one. Both parties deceive themselves.

In his 1936 address as the invited president of Jat-Pat Todak Mandal in Lahore—the convention where he was going to give his address never took place owing to his differences later with the Mandal—the things Ambedkar says about Hinduism some 90 years ago still cannot be told without fear of consequences: 'But the worst evil of this code of ordinances (or Sanatana Dharma) is that the laws it contains must be the same yesterday, today, and forever. They are iniquitous in that they are not the same for one class as for another. But this iniquity is made perpetual in that they are prescribed to be the same for all generations … The objectionable part is that this code has been invested with the character of finality and fixity. … I have, therefore, no hesitation in saying that such a religion must be destroyed, and I say there is nothing irreligious in working for the destruction of such a religion.' (The Annihilation of Caste).

Mitta's book 'traces the legal history of varna', and is 'very much about the current affairs of Hindus'. So it is. But if we follow Dr Ambedkar's logic to its conclusion, there is likely to be no Hindu religion at all because he will have no varnas.

It occurs to me that neither the prime minister nor the president of this country is from the upper caste. But at the same time, there certainly is a Hindu revival. Are we moving forward in a backward fashion? Or backward in a forward fashion? The next two volumes that Mitta has promised in the series might attempt an answer. One hopes it will not be too late by then.

Correct move

The ACB court is right to remand Chandrababu Naidu in the Skill Development Scam case. The AP CID provided impeccable evidence (both witnesses and documents) against Naidu in this case. The accused need not be given special treatment. Naidu should not be allowed bail in this case as he is adept at influencing the witnesses and making the documents "vanish", etc. Hopefully, a special court is constituted to speed up the trial.

Key Sela tunnel likely to open in October

The passage located in West Kameng district of Arunachal Pradesh will be one of the longest tunnels

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

PUSHING for greater connectivity in the Eastern Sector of the Line of Actual Control with China, the construction work by the Border Roads Organisation (BRO) on strategically important Sela Tunnel is in advanced stages.

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh is scheduled to inaugurate the smaller Nechifu Tunnel, which is on the same road route to Tawang, ahead of the Sela Tunnel.

Sources told this newspaper that around a month's work remains for the Sela Tunnel.

The Sela Tunnel Project is located in the West Kameng district of Arunachal Pradesh. Once complete, it will provide all-weather connectivity to Tawang.

The project comprises Tunnel 1, which is a 980 m long single tube tunnel and Tunnel 2, which is a 1555 m long twin tube tunnel. Tunnel 2 has one bylane tube for traffic and one escape tube for emergencies. It will also be one of the longest tunnels to have been constructed above altitude of 13,000 feet.

The project also includes construction of an approach road of 7 km to Tunnel 1, which takes off from Balipara-Charduar-Tawang (BCT) Road and a link road of 1.3 km, which connects Tunnel 1 to Tunnel 2.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi laid the foundation stone for the Sela Tunnel Project on Feb 9, 2019. The tunnel once complete will avoid all avalanche-prone and snowfall areas. It will reduce the travelling time from Tezpur to Tawang by more than one hour as the travellers would be able to avoid the dangerous snow-covered 13,700-ft high Sela top.

Tawang town is inhabited by more than 50,000 people, called as the little Tibet by China. It is one of the contentious areas which China claims as its own. At present, there is a lone highway which connects Tawang with Guwahati and the rest of the country in winters.

Strategic passage in Arunachal

Sela Tunnel is an under-construction passage at 3,000 metres which will ensure all-weather connectivity between Guwahati in Assam and Tawang in Arunachal Pradesh. The tunnel is being excavated below the 4,200 m Sela Pass in India on NH-13 component of trans-Arunachal highway system.

Rajnath to inaugurate projects in J&K

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh is scheduled to visit Jammu and Kashmir on Tuesday and is expected to inaugurate 90 Border Roads Organisation (BRO) projects amounting to ₹2,950 crore. The projects will include one tunnel, two airstrips and helipads each, 21 new roads, and 64 bridges. Sources said the project to be inaugurated by the Defence Minister includes Nechifu tunnel and the expansion of the Nyoma Advanced landing Ground at 13,700 ft into a 2.7 km long full-fledged airstrip at the cost of ₹218 crore.

Not even helicopters can fly in that area due to bad weather conditions. The Border Roads Organisation is currently executing multiple important projects spread across the country. The aim is to match the buildup of the Chinese People's Liberation Army across the Line of Actual Control (LAC).

The project with initial costing Rs 687 Crore being constructed by the Border Roads Organisation would be completed in the next three years. The entire project sanctioned in October 2018 covers a total distance of 12.04 km which consist of two tunnels of 1,790 m and 475 m with approach roads of 9.75 km.

There has been a push for road connectivity towards the 3,488 km-long Line of Actual Control which is divided into Western Sector (Ladakh), Middle Sector (Himachal Pradesh and Uttarakhand) and Eastern Sector (Sikkim and Arunachal Pradesh).

The work on three tunnels in Arunachal Pradesh, four in Jammu and Kashmir and one in Ladakh is in various stages of construction, sources said. For connectivity in Uttarakhand, a tunnel is planned towards Mussoorie in an area called Zig-Zag, said the sources.

Once complete, it will be able to handle the operations by the strategic airlift aircraft like the C-130J, C-17 and the ILs, along with the fighter operations.

This airstrip is within 40 km distance from the Line of Actual Control in eastern Ladakh and will give capability to the Indian Air Force to launch swift operations.

'Armed forces need to always remain alert for ops along LAC'

FORMER Indian Army chief Ved Prakash Malik in an interview with Rajesh Kumar Thakur says the armed forces have to remain alert and be prepared for both defensive as well as offensive operations along the LAC with China. Excerpts:

> Agniveer will correct revenue vs modernisation of defence budget profile and in the long run reduce the pension bill
>
> VP Malik

How do you assess India's defence preparedness since you demitted office?

Since then, there have been very substantial improvements in the capabilities and preparedness of India's armed forces. Some of them are additional raisings to improve defensive and offensive postures on the border/LoC/LAC, the improvement in surveillance provided by satellites, drones and other ground and aerial surveillance equipment, and the making up of weapons and equipment deficiencies to some extent.

The improved jointmanship among the Army, Navy, and Air Force has increased but a lot more needs to be done. A proactive strategic posture has been adopted at politico-military level, e.g. surgical strikes and occupation of Kailash Range in Eastern Ladakh. The energising of domestic defence industry to reduce foreign dependency for weapons and equipment has also been made to some extent.

Amid persisting unsettled situation along the LAC, how far are you confident of India's stand on it?

The situation on the ground is much better than it was in my time. However, it must be remembered that we have a very long disputed LAC with China, along a very difficult terrain. Despite improved surveillance and deployments, if the adversary decides to violate agreements, its attempts for minor or major encroachments cannot be ruled out. Our armed forces have to remain alert for defensive as well as offensive operations in all weather conditions.

How do you view the changes in defence preparedness post-2014? Do you see laudable developments under the present government?

Yes. Improvements in political decision-making and in many capabilities have taken place in the last decade. However, updating and improvement of defence capabilities is a continuous process, notwithstanding whichever political party is in power. As seen in the past, the nation has to pay a heavy price whenever there has been any complacency in defence planning and preparedness.

You handled the Kargil operation. Can you explain how the enemy managed to take control of that territory?

The Lahore Declaration had been signed two months before Pakistani intrusion in Kargil. Due to intelligence and surveillance failures, it took a long time to assess that we were facing Pakistan Army and not jihadis, for whom our rules of engagement are quite different. We lacked surveillance capabilities and were short of weapons and equipment, particularly for the mountainous, high altitude and glaciated terrain. Situation on the ground was not clear for several weeks. Due to nuclear weapons tests carried out in May 1988, we faced sanctions from the Western nations and were unable to import any equipment at short notice. However, the coordinated response at political, diplomatic and military levels, and the performance of our young leaders and soldiers on the ground, enabled us to overcome all these challenges.

How do you view the Agniveer scheme?

Agniveer Scheme has many advantages and some apprehensions. The advantages are: It will correct revenue vs modernisation defence budget profile and in the long run reduce the pension bill. We shall have younger, fitter, more daring and risk-taking profile of soldiers. The average age of jawans in units will reduce from 32 years to 25/26 years. The number of Low Medical Category soldiers in units will reduce.

INDIA bloc gearing up for seat-sharing talks on Sept 13

PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi

THE first meeting of the coordination committee of the Opposition alliance INDIA on September 13 in New Delhi will discuss seat-sharing formulas and mass campaign strategies for the upcoming assembly polls, according to CPI leader D Raja. The meet will be held at NCP chief Sharad Pawar's residence.

Meanwhile, the 21-member campaign committee will meet on Tuesday for the second time to firm up the plans for the rallies and campaigns.

Speaking to this newspaper, Raja, a member of the coordination committee, said the parties will continue discussions on seat-sharing for the upcoming assembly election in Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh and Telangana. The parties have already begun some talks at the state-level, he said.

> Parties have begun some talks at state-level. In Telangana, talks are going on. We will discuss the progress. We will also share our suggestions on how to take talks forward
>
> A Raja
> CPI leader

"It is the first meeting of the coordination committee after its formation. The parties have already begun some talks at state-level. In Telangana, some talks are going on. We will be discussing the progress made in the talks. We will also be sharing our suggestions on how to take the talks forward," he said, adding that they haven't set a deadline for seat-sharing talks as the election is yet to be announced.

Raja said the meeting will also discuss strategies for mass campaigns to be held in different states. "During our Mumbai meeting also, we discussed certain issues to be taken up to organize mass programmes,"he said. .

Meanwhile speaking to the media, RJD MP Manoj Jha said the results of the recent bypolls show that a narrative is getting built in favour of the INDIA bloc. In the seven assembly seats in six states, the Opposition won four and the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) won three.

"The meeting of the 13th is important, meetings of the different sub-groups have been held, like the social media committee, campaign committee, research committee, all have held their meetings. The deliberations held in these meetings will get a stamp of approval. A final shape will be given to the agenda, what would be the programmes, where the campaigns will be held, it will all be deliberated upon," he said.

Abhishek called for questioning by ED on same day

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Enforcement Directorate (ED) has summoned TMC's national general secretary Abhishek Banerjee for questioning on September 13, the day he is scheduled to attend the inaugural meeting the 14-member coordination committee meeting of INDIA bloc. The ED summons is in connection with irregularities in recruitment to state-aided schools.

"This is a political vendetta. In democracy, a few political parties have understanding with other outfits. There should be courtesy in politics. Summoning Abhishek is unnecessarily harassment. This may boomerang. There is nothing against me. They want to damage the power of our youth wing. But the youth in Bengal will not tolerate it," she Mamata before flying to Spain and Dubai aiming to bring investment in Bengal.

Mamata in the past had expressed her fear that the central agency might put Abhishek, the second-in-command in TMC, behind the bars.

Departure of Trudeau, entourage delayed as aircraft develops snag

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

CANADIAN Prime Minister Justin Trudeau will be the last G20 leader to leave New Delhi. Not that he had top-level meetings and discussions lined up. His aircraft developed a technical snag and a replacement aircraft is expected to land siib to fly him back.

"These issues are not fixable overnight, our delegation will be staying in India until alternate arrangements are made," a statement from Trudeau's office said.

Trudeau, it is learnt, didn't step out of the hotel the entire day. The PM, government staff and journalists travelling with him wereset to leave India on Sunday.

Even though Trudeau had a bilateral meeting with Prime Minister Narendra Modi, he was pulled up for not cracking the whip on Khalistini extremists in Canada who were attacking places of worship and threatening Indian diplomats. PM Modi conveyed his strong concerns about continuing anti-India activities in Canada.

Separatist groups seeking a homeland for Sikhs have organised a referendum in Canada asking the diaspora whether regions of India in which their community is in the majority should be independent or not.

Trudeau said he didn't support violence, but he believed in freedom of speech and wouldn't stop people from protesting. This line of the Canadian PM hasn't gone down well with India. "Obviously, Canada will always defend freedom of expression, freedom of conscience, peaceful protest. That's something that's extremely important to us. At the same time, as we are always there to prevent violence, to push back against hatred. It's important to remember the actions of the few do not represent the entire community or Canada," Trudeau said in a press meet on G20 sidelines.

China says Delhi Declaration reflects its proposition and sends a 'positive signal'

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

A DAY after the conclusion of G20 Summit, China said the Delhi Declaration reflected its proposition. A statement issued by the Chinese embassy in New Delhi also stated that it sent a 'positive signal' that the influential grouping is 'working together' to tackle global challenges and promote world economic recovery.

"In the process of preparing for the summit, China played a constructive role and always supported the summit in attaching importance to the concerns of developing countries and reaching to fruitful outcomes in support of common development," the statement said.

The G20 Summit in New Delhi adopted the leaders' declaration, sending a positive signal of the G20 working together to tackle global challenges and promote world economic recovery and global development.

"The G20 members should resolutely promote economic globalisation, jointly maintain stability and smoothness of industrial and supply chains, and be partners in promoting global open cooperation," said Premier Li Qiang's in the first session of the summit.

The G20 needed unity instead of division, cooperation instead of confrontation and inclusion instead of exclusion, the Chinese Premier added. "Throughout the history of human civilisation, the yearning for a better future has been the beacon that leads mankind forward," Premier Qiang said on the third session of the summit.

In an interaction with the media, External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar had said China was extended all support during the deliberations of the Delhi Leaders Declaration document.

AU, THE NEW KID ON THE G20 BLOC

The African Union (AU) consists of 55 member-states, including the disputed Western Sahara. Officially launched in 2002 as a successor to the Organisation of African Unity (OAU), it aims to promote the unity and solidarity of African states. For the resources it holds, the continent is central to discussions on climate change, food security, migration, etc. Now, as a high-profile G20 member, Africa's demands will be hard to ignore. Here is a swot analysis of AU.

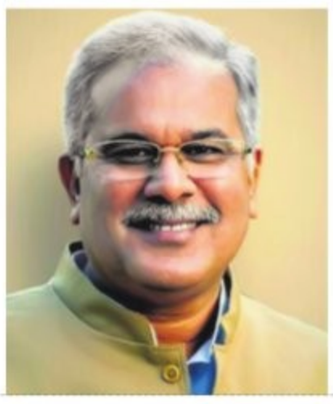
BJP focuses on 2nd list in MP, C'garh

Party's central panel to meet leaders from two states on September 13 before finalising lists

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR & ANURAAG SINGH @ New Delhi/Bhopal



THE BJP is likely to hold the next meeting of its Central Election Committee (CEC) on September 13 in the national capital in the presence of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, party chief JP Nadda, home minister Amit Shah and other core committee members.

Earlier, the BJP had released the first list of 39 candidates for the Madhya Pradesh assembly election and 21 for the Chhattisgarh assembly elections in August. The meeting is supposed to have a wider discussion over the poll preparedness for the two major poll-bound states – Madhya Pradesh and Chhattisgarh, which are due for polls later this year.

Reports said Madhya Pradesh Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan, state party chief VD Sharma and state general secretary (organization) Hitanand Sharma flew into Delhi on Monday afternoon.

A source in BJP on Monday hinted that the BJP's CEC meeting is expected to put the seal of approval on the second lists of candidates for Madhya Pradesh and Chhattisgarh as part of the party's well-crafted strategy to field the candidates much earlier in the polls in order to gain strong electoral mandate from these states. Madhya Pradesh is scheduled to go to the polls for the 230-memebr Assembly while Chhattisgarh will vote for the 90-member assembly.

"Madhya Pradesh and Chhattisgarh are slated to witness a high-pitched poll battle. Leaving nothing to chance, the party seems to have decided to release lists of candidates well before the announcement of the dates of elections in these states. Such strategy will give ample time to the candidates for campaigning on the ground," said a BJP leader.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi along with other CEC members are expected to go through the feedback from candidates and keep in mind the prospective candidate's links with the people and other criteria before announcing them candidates.

The BJP is learnt to have identified many "weak and vulnerable" assembly seats in Madhya Pradesh and Chhattisgarh on the basis of previous assembly elections' outcomes.

"As the party wants candidates with non-controversial political backgrounds, there is a possibility to have a discussion on this point at the CEC meeting. The second important point of discussion is likely to be on proper proportional representation of each community in the upcoming elections," said a source.

The feedback has reportedly been gathered from each of these two states by the party. The winnability factor will equally matter in the meeting during the discussion.

According to party sources, the CEC has also identified "vulnerable seats" numbering 30-35 in Chhattisgarh and 2-25 in Madhya Pradesh. "For each of these seats, there is a possibility to finalise the names of strong candidates – from women, ST, SC and other communities", said a source.

'Will release lists before polling dates are out'

According to a BJP leader, they will release lists of candidates well before the announcement of the dates of elections in the two states. "Leaving nothing to chance, the party seems to have decided to release lists of candidates well before the announcement of the dates of elections in these states. Such strategy will give ample time to the candidates for campaigning"

SC's 2014 ruling on Sec 6A retrospective

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Monday ruled that its 2014 order striking down a provision in the Delhi Special Police Establishment (DSPE) Act that barred investigating agencies from probing corruption cases against senior government officers without approval will have retrospective effect.

Section 6A of the DSPE Act had mandated probe agencies to seek the Centre's nod to investigate graft cases against officers at the level of joint secretary and above. The section was inserted on September 11, 2003 and had in effect provided immunity to such officers. In 2014, the SC struck it down saying there can be no distinction between officials based on their rank.

On Monday, a five-judge bench headed by Justice Sanjay Kishan Kaul ruled that its 2014 order will have be enforceable from the date the provision was inserted (September 11, 2003).

SC said Section 6A will be considered as never having been in force. "Once a law is declared to be unconstitutional... then it would be held to be void ab initio, still born, unenforceable and non est in view of Article 13(2) of the Constitution and its interpretation by authoritative pronouncements," it said.

The bench, also comprising judges Sanjiv Khanna, A S Oka, Vikram Nath, and J K Maheshwari, said Article 20(1) of the Constitution would not be applicable in this case because Section 6A is part of a legal procedure exclusively applicable to senior officials.

Article 20(1) says that no person can be convicted in any offence except for violation of the law in force at the time of the commission of the act.

Punjab minister performs successful eye surgery

Punjab Minister Dr Baljit Kaur has yet again performed a successful free operation on the right eye of Gurjit Singh hailing from Muktsar district. The mentally-ill patient was previously operated on his other eye by Kaur before entering politics. Handling multiple portfolios – like Social Security, Women and Child Development and Social Justice, Empowerment, and Minorities – the minister said that individuals like Singh always serve as motivation to keep her going in life. Kaur is known for conducting free eye check-up of patients during her public meeting programmes. With this operation, Singh will be able to see society with his own eyes and lead a better life.

At event, Mann snubs MLAs accused of graft

Two graft-accused AAP MLAs faced an embarrassing situation recently at a state-level function at Moga where Punjab CM Bhagwant Mann gave them the cold shoulder. Sacked health minister and Mansa MLA Vijay Singla was dropped from the cabinet last year, while Bathinda legislator Amit Rattan Kotfatta was held in February and let off on bail a month later. They were booked by the vigilance in corruption cases. At the Teachers Day event in Moga, Mann took names of all ministers and MLAs present and thanked them but chose to miss the two names – perceived as a warning signal to them.

Infighting in Haryana Cong comes to the fore

Factionalism brewing in the Haryana Congress surfaced during a recent feedback session where the All India Congress Committee (AICC) coordinators had come to meet party cadre – leaving the state brass red-faced. Those coordinating the meet would have never thought that the arriving leaders would walk away before even touching a glass of water. During the meeting, a section of the cadre was given free hand to show strength against a rival camp. However, the indiscipline that was caused left the AICC coordinators disappointed. The local leadership even went on to term the indiscipline of the workers as 'excitement'.

MANIPUR

Editors Guild seeks shifting of case to Delhi

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Monday agreed to examine if the Editors Guild of India's president and its fact-finding team, booked by the Manipur police for its report allegedly promoting enmity between different groups, could approach the Delhi High Court as a one-time measure to quash the FIR.

A bench led by CJI D Y Chandrachud said, "It is a report after all. The basic question he (Kapil Sibal) is arguing is they have only done a report that may be a matter of their subjective opinion... This is not a case of somebody on the ground having committed an offence."

The CJI directed Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for the Manipur government, to take instructions regarding its proposal to transfer the FIR to the Delhi HC instead of Manipur and extended its interim protection of the journalists till September 15.

The guild informed the court that its team had visited the state to undertake an objective assessment of unethical and exparte reporting by the media. Sibal sought transfer of the case to Delhi, saying the property of two lawyers who had appeared for Prof Kham Khan Suan Hausing was vandalised in Manipur.

2-3K people to be arrested for child marriage: Himanta

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Guwahati

ASSAM government will arrest 2,000 to 3,000 men in the next 10 days in the second phase of the drive against child marriage, Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma announced.

Speaking at the National Executive of BJP Mahila Morcha on Sunday, he expressed deep concern over the exploitation of girls. "We got 5,000 people arrested in child marriage cases five months ago. In the next 10 days, another 2,000 to 3,000 men will be arrested. This (child marriage) has to be stopped," Sarma said.

Stating that there is a law against child marriage in the state, he said if the menace continues, girls could never march forward and would continue to be exploited. "Some people say I am anti-Muslim. But I feel the Congress has not done the amount of work I have done to end child marriage and polygamy. You (Congress) made the Muslim society your vote banks. But we want women to get freedom from exploitation," the Assam CM said.

He told the state Assembly on Monday that altogether 3,907 people (and not 5,000) were arrested in last five years in child marriage cases. He said 3,319 of them were arrested under the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act and 62 were punished by the court following conviction.

A majority of those arrested were Muslims. Hindus and people from other communities were also arrested. Alongside the drive against child marriage, the state government is trying to end polygamy.

The government has constituted a three-member committee with Advocate General, Legal Remembrancer and Director General of Police to draft the proposed anti-polygamy law. Sarma is hopeful that the law could be enacted by December this year.

Maratha reservation body threatens Manipur-like situation if quota denied

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

THE Maratha community's umbrella body on Monday warned the BJP-led Maharashtra government that "if it does not want to turn Maharashtra into a Manipur, then it should immediately resolve the perennial Maratha reservation issue as early as possible."

The All Indian Maratha Mahasangh called a meeting in Nagpur on Monday where a decision was taken to fight for the Maratha reservation.

Dilip Jagtap, Maratha Mahasangh chief, said since the state and Central government are ruled by the BJP, there should be no problem in announcing the reservations to the Marathas. "If they want to lift the 50% cap on the reservation, they can do it but reservation to the Maratha community should be given," said Jagtap.

"The Maratha community is in a majority in many parts of the state. Yet it is socially and economically backward. Our leader Manoj Garange Patil has been on hunger strike for 12 days, but no concrete solution has come out yet. His health is deteriorating. If something happens to his life, then the state government will be responsible," Jagtap warned.

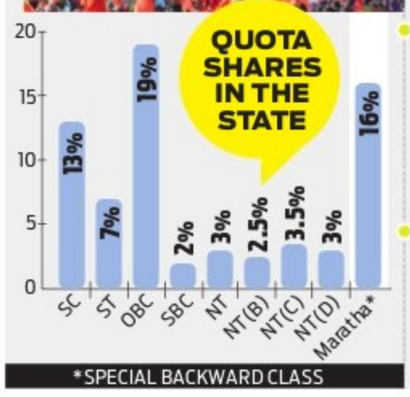
On the other hand, restlessness grew among the OBC community over the talk of including Marathas in the OBC category. However, deputy chief minister Devendra Fadnavis on Monday clarified that the government would not do injustice to the OBC communities.

The Maratha community is demanding the issuance of Kunbi caste certificate that will help it to get a place in the OBC category because the community is already notified as the OBC. Earlier, Maharashtra government gave 16% reservation to the Marathas but the Supreme Court struck it down citing faulty empirical data and a cap of 50% reservations.

The Kunbi is a major agrarian caste in Vidarbha and North Maharashtra. The SC struck down the reservation citing a lack of data to prove that the Marathas are backward.

CAUSE FOR THE STIR

Marathas comprise a third of Maharashtra population. The quota demand is central to the state politics since 1981. Here's how the decades-old crisis unfolded:



2014: Then Prithviraj Chauhan-led govt introduced ordinance giving 16% quota to Marathas based on Narayan Rane panel proposals

2018: State govt grants 16% quota in the face of massive protests. It was slashed to 13% in jobs and 12% in education by Bombay HC

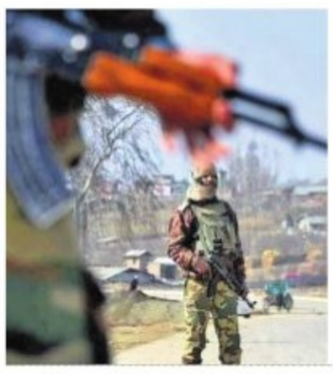
September 1, 2023: Jarange Patil-led Maratha protesters demanding OBC status lathi-charged in Jalna (Aurangabad division)

Drug network suspected as Army jawan held in Punjab for leaking info to ISI

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh



AN army jawan hailing from Madhya Pradesh posted as a computer operator at Western Command headquarters was remanded to three-day police custody on Monday.

Sepoy Manpreet Sharma was arrested by the Punjab Police from Bhopal railway station on Sunday for allegedly supplying sensitive information to the Inter Service Intelligence (ISI) of Pakistan through a drug peddler. He was brought to a Patiala court from Bhopal on Monday. A 140-page dossier, maps and pictures were shared by the sepoy to the peddler.

Punjab Police in a joint operation with ATS Madhya Pradesh arrested the soldier as he hails from Bhopal.

He is posted as a computer operator at Western Command headquarters in Chandimandir in Punjab.

Manpreet proceeded on leave after he came to know that the police had contacted the army for a joint probe in drug peddler Amrik Singh's case – who was arrested in May last year.

During the probe into the drug peddling case in which Amrik was arrested, police had recovered five mobile phones all of different brands.

During their examination, the cybercrime cell of the police was surprised to find out that Amrik was in touch with ISI agent Sher Khan in Pakistan. He also had a foreign SIM card and had shared maps and pictures of the army assets, besides a 140-page dossier containing information. It has been alleged that the information was sourced through the Army jawan.

Sources also alleged that Amrik was coerced into sharing information after being caught in a honeytrap laid by the ISI had. Many voice recordings related to conversations between the drug peddler and the ISI agent is being investigated by the police and the army.

Additionally, a retired IAS officer, reportedly a relative of Amrik, will also be questioned by the police in the coming days as he used to visit the drug peddler in jail.

Rail network in J&K likely to be extended to LoC

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

WITH the improvement in the ground situation in Jammu and Kashmir, the Northern Railway will soon initiate aerial as well as ground surveys for extending the railway line from Baramulla to the border town of Uri – thus connecting the Line of Control (LoC) with the rail link.

The Northern Railway has received an alignment approval report from the concerned agency for the 50 kms long Baramulla to Uri train link, a railway official said. At present, the train plies between 135.5 km from Banihal to Baramulla in north Kashmir.

The official said once the report (alignment approval) is approved, the aerial, drone and ground survey of the 50 km long Baramulla-Uri rail link will be started.

It will not take much long for the start of the aerial and ground survey, he said.

According to the official, the alignment report has proposed setting up of over half a dozen railway stations in the 50 km long railway track.

The new railway line from Baramulla to Uri will pass through key locations like Baramulla, Sheeri, Gantmulla, Boniyar, Limber, Nougram, Lagama and Uri town. The extension of train link to border town of Uri will generate lot of employment and locals can be the major beneficiary.

Union Railway Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw during his visit to Jammu and Kashmir in March this year had announced that the rail network in Kashmir will be expanded up to the Chinese border.

The extension of rail link upto border area of Uri would improve the connectivity of the local population. Their journey to Baramulla, Srinagar and upto Banihal in Srinagar-Jammu national highway would be eased and made hassle-free.

Besides, it would help the trade and business as the border areas including Uri have been thrown open for the tourists by the authorities after the improvement of the ground situation. With the increased connectivity, the tourists would find it easy to reach Uri and also plan their journey from Uri to other parts of the Valley the same day.

Chairman Dry Fruit Association Uri Mohammad Amin, said after extension of train link upto Uri, their goods would reach Delhi within 36-48 hours instead of the present 10 days.

"It will prove very beneficial for the traders, especially the fruit growers," he said.

The train link to Uri would also help in mobility of the troops deployed at the LoC in Uri and other forward areas of north Kashmir. It would help in quick transportation.

Aerial and ground survey soon

The Northern Railway will soon initiate an aerial and ground survey for extending the railway line from Baramulla to border town of Uri – thus connecting the Line of Control (LoC) with the rail link. The Northern Railway has received an alignment approval report from the concerned agency for the 50 kms long Baramulla to Uri train link. 150 dead as catastrophic storm floods hit Libya; Derna declared disaster area

BENGHAZI

AT least 150 people were killed when freak floods hit eastern Libya, officials said on Monday, after storm "Daniel" swept the Mediterranean, its torrential rains earlier lashing Turkey, Bulgaria and Greece.

Images filmed by residents of the Libyan disaster area showed massive mudslides, collapsed buildings and entire neighbourhoods submerged under muddy water.

"At least 150 people were killed as a result of flooding and torrential rains left by storm Daniel in Derna, Jabal al-Akhdar region and the suburbs of Al-Marj," said Mohamed Massoud, a spokesman for the Benghazi-based administration in Libya. "This is besides the massive material damage that struck public and private properties," he said.

Hundreds of residents were still believed to be trapped in difficult-to-reach areas as rescuers, backed by the army, were trying to come to their aid.

East Libyan authorities had "lost contact with nine soldiers during rescue operations," Massoud said.

He said the PM of the east-based government, Oussama Hamad, and the head of a rescue committee as well as other ministers had travelled to Derna to evaluate the extent of the damage. Hamad's government on Monday declared Derna a "disaster area."

Libya's western government under Abdelhamid Dbeibah, during a ministerial meeting, announced three days of national mourning and emphasised "the unity of all Libyans" in the face of the disaster.

The UN mission in Libya on Monday said on X that it was "closely following the emergency caused by severe weather conditions in the...country." It expressed its condolences over the deaths and said it was "ready to support efforts by local authorities and municipalities to respond to this emergency and provide humanitarian assistance." AFP

Race to save lives in earthquake-hit Morocco as survival window narrows

Moroccan rescuers supported by foreign teams intensify search for survivors amid rubble

TALAT NYACOUB

RESCUERS with shovels worked alongside bulldozers on Monday to dig through remote Moroccan villages flattened by a monstrous earthquake, as hope dwindled of finding people alive under wood-and-dirt homes that pancaked into rubble and rescuers from overseas joined the search effort.

The 6.8-magnitude quake struck the Atlas mountains late Friday southwest of the tourist centre of Marrakesh. It killed at least 2,681 people and injured over 2,500 others, according to the latest official toll.

In the disaster-stricken community of Talat Nyacoub, 12 ambulances and several dozen 4X4s from the army and police were deployed while around 100 Moroccan rescuers were searching for signs of life amid the collapsed buildings.

Nearby, AFP saw a Spanish team of 30 firefighters, a doctor, nurse and two technicians coordinating with Moroccan authorities before starting to dig, as a helicopter flew overhead.

"The big difficulty is in zones remote and difficult to access, like here, but the injured are choppered out," Annika Coll from Spain said.

About 70 kilometres north, another Spanish team from the Military Emergencies Unit (UME) had set up camp since Sunday night on the edge of Amizmiz village.

AFP journalists in Amizmiz saw Moroccan troops handing out hundreds of blankets to residents who had lost their homes. "My mother died, her house is ruined. My place in Amizmiz no longer exists so we sleep outside in tents with my two children aged four months and six years," said Hafid Ait Lahcen, 32, a construction worker. "No one from the authorities has offered us accommodation. We are completely lost."Albert Vasquez, the Spanish unit's communications officer, said his team was awaiting a meeting with Moroccan civil defence to determine exactly where they were needed.

Time was short, and Vasquez warned that "it's very difficult to find people alive after three days" but "hope is still there".

For Lahcen and Habiba Barouj, the help came too late.

An ambulance took their father, 81, to hospital with a broken leg. The previous day, they buried their mother who was killed in the quake. Agencies

KIM TO MEET PUTIN IN RUSSIA AMID WEST'S CONCERNS ABOUT ARMS DEAL

SEOUL

NORTH Korean leader Kim Jong Un will visit Russia, both countries said on Monday, and he is expected to hold a highly anticipated meeting with President Vladimir Putin that has sparked Western concerns about a potential arms deal for Moscow's war.

A brief statement on the Kremlin's website said the visit is at Putin's invitation and would take place "in the coming days." It also was reported by North Korea's Korean Central News Agency, which said the leaders would meet—without specifying when and where. "The respected Comrade Kim Jong Un will meet and have a talk with Comrade Putin during the visit."

Kremlin spokesperson Dmitry Peskov said delegations from both countries will meet, but he didn't confirm plans for a bilateral session between Putin and Kim, saying the leaders will meet one-on-one "if necessary." The visit would be Kim's first foreign trip since the Covid-19.

AP journalists near the North Korea-Russia frontier saw a green train with yellow trim—similar to one used by the reclusive Kim during previous foreign trips—at a station on the North Korean side of a border river. It was unclear whether Kim was on the train, which was seen moving back and forth between the station and the approach to the bridge that connects the countries.

Citing unidentified South Korean government sources, the Chosun Ilbo newspaper reported the train likely left Pyongyang on Sunday evening and that a Kim-Putin meeting is possible as early as Tuesday.

The Yonhap news agency and some other media published similar reports. Japan's Kyodo news agency cited Russian officials as saying Kim was possibly heading for Russia in his personal train. AP

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

GLOBAL investment firm KKR will invest ₹2,069.50 crore in Reliance Retail Ventures Limited (RRVL) and pick an additional 0.25% stake in the company, a media statement by Reliance Retail said on Monday.

This investment values RRVL at a pre-money equity value of ₹8.4 lakh crore, which makes it among the top four companies by equity value in the country. KKR had earlier invested ₹5,550 crore in 2020 in Reliance Retail. After the latest round of investment, KKR's total stake in Reliance Retail will go up to 1.42% on a fully-diluted basis.

In 2020, the RRVL had raised ₹47,265 crore from a number of investors at a pre-money equity value of ₹4.21 lakh crore. Recently, Qatar Investment Authority picked up 1% stake in the retail arm of Reliance Industries (RIL) at ₹8,300 crore.

As per a statement by RRVL, KKR's follow-on investment in in it furthers its relationship with RIL. In addition to its investment in RRVL, KKR is also an investor in Jio Platforms Limited, a leading digital services platform and a subsidiary of Reliance Industries Limited," said the statement.

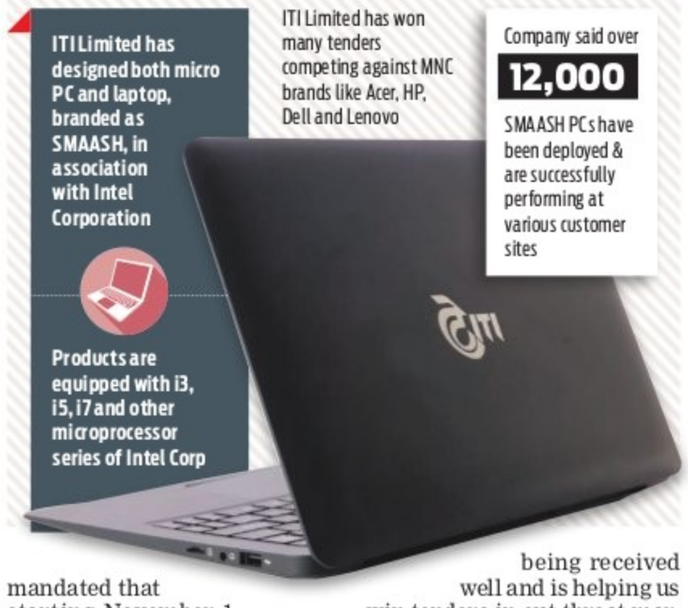
"We highly value our deepening partnership with KKR, and their latest investment in RRVL after their previous investment further reinforces their strong belief in RRVL's vision and capabilities. We look forward to continued engagement with KKR and to benefit from their global platform, industry knowledge and operational expertise, in our journey towards driving transformation of the Indian retail sector," Isha Amabni, director, RRVL, said in a statement.

RRVL, through its subsidiaries and associates, operates India's largest, fastest growing, and most profitable retail business serving 267 million loyalty customers.

State-owned ITI develops micro PC, laptop Smaash

Claims products can match global quality, performance standards

RAKESH KUMAR @ New Delhi



NEW PRODUCT LAUNCH
ITI Limited has designed both micro PC and laptop, branded as SMAASH, in association with Intel Corporation
Products are equipped with i3, i5, i7 and other microprocessor series of Intel Corp
ITI Limited has won many tenders competing against MNC brands like Acer, HP, Dell and Lenovo
Company said over
12,000
SMAASH PCs have been deployed & are successfully performing at various customer sites

DAYS after India made it mandatory to seek licence for import of laptops and personal computers (PC), state-owned ITI Limited has claimed it has developed its own brand of laptop and micro PC for domestic market.

The company, which offers a complete range of telecom products, claims that its products --branded as SMAASH -- can match international quality and performance standards. Products from the Bangalore-based public sector company are already available in the market, and the company has successfully won many tenders, competing against MNC brands such as Acer, HP, Dell, and Lenovo.

"The flagship products - Laptop and Micro PC – have been designed in association with Intel Corporation with which an MoU has been signed for design and manufacturing," said a company statement. After the announcement, share price of the company rose from ₹125 level in the afternoon to close the day on Monday at ₹149.30, up 20% from the previous day's closing. Central government holds 90.28% stake in ITI Ltd. In August 2023, the government mandated that starting November 1, laptop manufacturing firms must obtain a licence to import laptops, PCs, and servers into India. It has won two tenders from KITE- Kerala Infrastructure and Technology for Education, and has supplied about 9,000 laptops to the government schools in Kerala. "SMAASH is being received well and is helping us win tenders in cut throat markets. It is indeed a challenging task to win tenders competing with MNCs who have global reach and deep pockets. We have to innovate not only with technology but also with our business model and SMAASH delivers every time," said Rajesh Rai, Chairman and MD of ITI Ltd.

Govt considering direct listing of Indian cos on London Stock Exchange

MONIKA YADAV @ New Delhi

INDIA would explore the possibility of direct listing of Indian companies on the London Stock Exchange (LSE), according to a joint statement issued on Monday after the 12th India-UK Economic and Financial Dialogue in New Delhi.

UK Chancellor of the Exchequer, Jeremy Hunt, expressed his satisfaction with the development, stating, "We are particularly pleased to have made a big step forward with the first confirmation by India that it will explore the London Stock Exchange as an international destination for the direct listing of Indian companies."

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, who was present alongside Hunt at the joint press conference, explained that India intends to introduce a proposal allowing both listed and unlisted Indian companies to directly list their shares on the exchanges at the International Financial Services Centre (IFSC). Sitharaman clarified, "At this stage, we have said very clearly we are looking at listing on IFSC first," indicating that other exchanges would be considered later.

India and the UK have reaffirmed their commitment to expeditiously finalise a free trade agreement (FTA) between the two countries. Sitharaman emphasised the significance of promptly concluding the FTA, stating, "There is definitely some discussion on the FTA... the key on both sides is to conclude it as soon as possible."

Hunt highlighted the establishment of the Pensions and Insurance Partnership, initiatives for knowledge and expertise-sharing, the new UK Infrastructure Financing Bridge, and the deepened partnership on India's developmental GIFT City.

"We can really support each other's plans to strengthen the relationship, and the next step of this is a comprehensive FTA and Bilateral Investment Treaty," Hunt added.

MF SIPs hit record high of ₹15,814 cr in August

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Mumbai

INFLOWS in mutual fund schemes through systematic investment plans (SIPs) hit an all-time high of ₹15,814 crore in August, according to figures released by the Association of Mutual Funds in India (AMFI).

The previous monthly high of SIPs inflows was ₹15,244 crore in the preceding month of July. The net inflows in equity mutual funds surged to five-month high of ₹20,161 crore compared to ₹7,505 crore in July this year.

"It is very heartening to see that Indian retail investors continue to invest in the equity markets via the Mutual Fund route, especially through SIP mode. The record SIP contribution of ₹15,813.54 crore is a testimony of the Indian investors' long-term approach to building wealth by investing through small ticket-sized SIPs. Economic growth is expected to improve, and the markets are expected to grow," said NS Venkatesh, CEO, AMFI. "The industry's focus on investor education and protecting the interests of investors community has bolstered investor confidence in the category. The industry continues to work towards the aim of achieving ₹100 trillion in AUM over the next few years and we are almost halfway there already," he added. There was a net outflow of ₹25,872 crore from the income or debt orientedschemes in August.

Byju's to sell assets to repay $1.2 bn loan

UMA KANNAN @ Bengaluru

EDTECH firm Byju's, which has been holding one-on-one talks with its lenders for some months now, will repay the $1.2 billion term loan B within the next six months.

It will clear the loan amount by selling Great Learning and Epic, which were acquired in 2021, sources told this newspaper.

Sources added that these two companies will fetch Byju's around $1 billion. The edtech firm is also planning to raise funds and will file its FY22 results by the end of this month.

People aware of the development said talks are on to sell Byju's two assets and it plans to tap private equity investors for the sale. Byju's acquired US-based reading platform Epic for $500 million and Great Learning, a professional learning platform, for about $600 million. These developments have come after the edtech firm formed an Advisory Council. Former SBI chairman Rajnish Kumar and former CFO of Infosys TV Mohandas Pai joined the council, which is playing a significant role in advising and mentoring Byju's Board and its CEO, Byju Raveendran.

Byju's may fetch $1 billion from sale

Sources added that these two companies will fetch company Byju's around $1 billion. The edtech company is also planning to raise funds and will file its FY22 results by the end of this month. People aware of the development said discussions are on to sell Byju's two assets and it plans to tap private equity investors for the sale

Earlier, the newspaper reported that the edtech firm and lenders have decided to postpone the disagreement in US courts before October 6. Earlier in June, the company had filed a complaint in the New York Supreme Court to challenge the acceleration of the $1.2 billion TLB (the firm secured this loan in November 2021). It had skipped paying $40 million interest.

Last month, it restructured its businesses and verticals including the consolidation of four verticals into two key verticals - K-10 and Exam Prep.

Also, the edtech firm Byju's, which acquired tuition chain Aakash Educational Services, for about $950 million in April 2021, will launch the initial public offering (IPO) of Aakash in mid 2024.

The board of the edtech company had granted its official sanction for this IPO. "The upcoming IPO will provide a significant capital infusion to bolster Aakash's infrastructure, broaden its reach, and extend high-quality test-prep education to a larger number of students across the nation," the company had said.

ONLINE travel aggregator Yatra Online and Fintech player Zaggle Prepaid Ocean Services will launch initial public offering (IPO) this week.

The IPO of Zaggle Prepaid Ocean Services will open on September 14 while Yatra Online will launch IPO on September 15. Yatra Online's proposed IPO comprises a fresh issue of equity shares worth up to ₹750 crore by Yatra India and an offer for sale (OFS) of up to 9,328,358 equity shares, according to the draft red herring prospectus (DRHP). As part of the OFS, THCL Travel Holdings Cyprus Ltd and Pandara Trust - Scheme I through its trustee Vistra ITCL (India) would offload shares.

Yatra Online Ltd has received the final observation letter dated November 17 from Sebi in connection with its DRHP filed in March, the Nasdaq-listed Yatra Online Inc said in a statement.

Fintech player Zaggle Prepaid Ocean Services on Monday set the price band for its ₹564 crore initial share sale at Rs 156-164 apiece, a hefty 156-164 times of the face value of its shares. The IPO comprises a fresh issue of equity shares up to ₹392 crore and an offer for sale (OFS) by promoters and a few external investors aggregating up to ₹174 crore. Post-issue the promoter and promoter entities will hold around 42% of the paid up equity, while selling shareholders will collectively pare their holdings by a tad over 8%.

Through the OFS, the founder and chairman Raj P Narayanam will sell just 0.02% from his 44% holding. Another promoter Avinash Ramesh Godkhindi, who is also the managing director of the city-based firm, will sell an equal amount of stake. External investor VenturEast Proactive Fund will sell a 2.17%, while another external investor GKFF Ventures will pare only 0.02%.

Top court comes down heavily on SpiceJet, asks airline to pay dues

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Monday came down heavily on SpiceJet and asked its promoter and Chairman and managing director Ajay Singh to make a payment of $5,00,000 towards an instalment to Credit Suisse by September 22 and clear the remaining $1 million due.

The court warned the budget airline of drastic action, including jail time for Singh in Tihar, at the next hearing if it failed to adhere to the order. The case will now be heard on September 22.

In a separate hearing, the Delhi High Court gave SpiceJet and Singh time till Tuesday to pay the remaining money toward a ₹100 crore arbitral award to the former promoter of SpiceJet and Sun Group's Kalanithi Maran.

Later in the day, SpiceJet said that it would pay $1.5 million to Credit Suisse as per Court direction. It also said it would clear the ₹100 crore due to Maran.

"SpiceJet acknowledges the legal process and is committed to complying with all court directives and obligations in the Credit Suisse case and will make the payment of $1.5 million as per the court directive. Till date, SpiceJet has already paid a total of $8 million to Credit Suisse," the airline said in a statement.

The legal dispute between the two pastries started when Credit Suisse dragged SpiceJet to the Madras High Court in 2021 after the airline failed to make payments of over $24 million to maintenance, repair and overhauling (MRO) service provider SR Technics. Credit Suisse had a financing agreement with SR Technics that gave it the right to receive payments from the airline.

In December 2021, the Madras High Court ordered the liquidation of SpiceJet after the airline failed to clear the debt owed to Credit Suisse. Then the matter was transferred to the top court.

SpiceJet in May 2022 said that the two parties reached a settlement. In March 2023, however, Credit Suisse approached the Supreme Court seeking to initiate contempt proceedings against Singh and SpiceJet over "a wilful and intentional disobedience" of court orders and failure to pay dues.

COURT EXTENDS GOYAL'S CUSTODY TILL SEPT 14

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

CITING an investigation carried so far by the Enforcement Directorate (ED), a special court in Mumbai on Monday noted Naresh Goyal, the founder of Jet Airways, siphoned off funds abroad by creating trusts and used them to buy properties.

Goyal, 74, was arrested earlier this month by the ED in an alleged ₹538 crore bank fraud case. His ED custody was extended till September 14 by the court in the money laundering case. The ED told the court that maximum money that was siphoned off has been stacked in foreign accounts and there is a person in the United Arab Emirates (UAE) to look after it and further probe was needed into the matter. Goyal's side argued that he didn't take any loans on his or family's name or stood as a guarantor for them.

The court, in its order, said statements of the accused prima facie indicate he has avoided giving details of his bank accounts as well as movable and immovable properties in India and abroad. When he was interrogated about these details, Goyal referred to one Hasmukh Gardi, a UAE resident whom he had given power of attorney.

30-day time limit for e-invoice filing

MONIKA YADAV @ New Delhi

THE GST e-Invoice system on Monday announced the enforcement of a 30-day time limit for reporting invoices on e-invoice portals, effective November 1, 2023.

The new time limit applies to taxpayers with an aggregate annual turnover of ₹100 crore or more.

Under the updated advisory by the National Informatics Centre, taxpayers falling into this category will no longer be permitted to report invoices that are older than 30 days from the date of reporting. This restriction encompasses all document types for which Invoice Reference Numbers (IRNs) are required.

The time limit also extends to credit and debit notes, mandating that they must be reported within 30 days from the date of issue. This means that invoices and related documents, such as credit and debit notes, must be reported promptly to comply with the new regulation.

The e-invoice system is for a GST registered person for uploading all the B2B invoices to the Invoice Registration Portal. This development comes as part of ongoing efforts by the GST Authority to refine and strengthen the Goods and Services Tax (GST) framework, ensuring transparency and accuracy in reporting while simplifying tax compliance for businesses.

Rajat Mohan, Senior Partner with AMRG & Associates said, "The GST ecosystem will set a 30-day reporting deadline for invoices on the E-invoicing portal. The new rule would apply to large taxpayers with a threshold revenue of Rs 100 crores and above. As a result, large taxpayers would not be permitted to declare invoices over 30 days old at the time of reporting." "The government initially proposed a 7-day time limit for such invoice reporting in April 2023, but the industry strenuously objected. The deadline has been extended to 30 days, which ought to be enough," Mohan added.

Not closing operations in India: Coinbase

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Bengaluru

CRYPTO exchange Coinbase on Monday said that it is not discontinuing services in India.

Earlier, some users took to social media and said 'users are advised to withdraw their funds as Coinbase is discontinuing all services for its users in India.' One of the largest crypto exchanges in the US, Coinbase, clarified an email was sent to some account holders last Friday and it doesn't relate to India or Indian operations, and it relates to Indian users using the platform in other jurisdictions. It added therefore they will be disabling these accounts, and allow customers to update their information at a later date.

Middle-order batter Rahul smashes century, along with Kohli, help India win by 228 runs

KL Rahul (L) and Virat Kohli celebrate after reaching three-figure mark against Pakistan. The duo put on an unbeaten partnership of 233 runs off 194 deliveries | AP

Pos	M	R	HS	AVG	100
1-2	23	915	111	43.57	3
3	3	77	47	25.67	0
4	10	352	111*	58.66	2
5	18	742	112	53	1
6	1	11	11*	–	–

HAD it not been a last-minute injury to Shreyas Iyer, KL Rahul would not have even found a place in the playing XI against Pakistan in their Super Four match here at the R Premadasa Stadium, Colombo. The team sheet shared by India captain Rohit Sharma at the toss at least suggested so. The No. 4 position where Rahul eventually came out to bat was marked for Iyer while the former was at No 13 on the team sheet with Suryakumar Yadav being the 12th man.

As if that uncertainty was not enough, inclement weather further prohibited Rahul from expressing himself after a gap of four months. When he was unbeaten on 17, the sky opened up forcing match officials to suspend the game on Sunday. India were 147/2 after 24.1 overs.

The only solace was the fact that the contest had a reserve day as announced by the Asian Cricket Council a few days ago giving Rahul hope to carry on from where he had left on Sunday evening. The rain Gods, however, attempted to spoil his and Team India's plans as it poured heavily minutes before the resumption, forcing the ground staff to cover the entire ground. The cloudy sky and consistent drizzling might have again made Rahul and other Indian batters restless but unlike Sunday, the weather showed mercy allowing the play to resume at 4:40 PM. But once Rahul and Virat took the field, they showed no mercy as the duo sent Pakistan bowlers on a leather hunt. While openers Rohit (56) and Shubman Gill (58) had added 121 for the first wicket, Rahul and Virat remained unconquered. They stitched together a 233-run partnership for the third wicket. Kohli was unbeaten on 122 off 94 while Rahul was not out on 111 off 106 taking India to 356/2. Virat also became the quickest to reach 13,000 runs in ODIs. The century was also his 47th in the ODIs, only two behind the legendary Sachin Tendulkar.

Injury to Haris Rauf didn't help Pakistan's cause either as the pacer, who bowled five overs on Sunday, didn't take the field on Monday. Babar Azam and Co suffered another injury scare when pacer Naseem Shah left the field in the penultimate over of the Indian innings and Iftikhar Ahmed had to bowl the remaining four deliveries to complete that over. In reply, Pakistan crumbled to 128/8 in 32 overs with Kuldeep Yadav taking five wickets. Injured Naseem and Rauf did not come out to bat.

Earlier, returning after a long lay-off, 31-year-old Rahul did find a place in the 17-member squad for the Asia Cup but was left back at the National Cricket Academy (NCA), Bengaluru due to a fresh niggle. After missing two matches, he joined the squad in Colombo and was even added to the World Cup squad.

Given his long absence from the field, questions were raised on his return to the team right before the World Cup. This despite the fact that his performance in the 50-over format has been good in the recent past before injury sidelined him in May. While he didn't exactly dazzle with the willow in 2023, Rahul scored two half-centuries in the previous six ODIs before the match against Pakistan. But something was missing and even Rahul apparently knew it. For a batter, who had made his ODI debut with a century, not reaching the three-figure mark for more than two years would have been frustrating. He last hit a century on March 26, 2021, when he made 108 against England in Pune. Since then he had played 17 ODIs scoring four half-centuries but the ton was looking elusive before it finally came against the arch-rivals. Though Rahul had played maximum matches as an opener, it's No. 4 or No. 5 where he has scored the most runs. At No 4, where he batted on Monday, his numbers are the most impressive. In 10 matches he batted in that position, he has scored 352 runs including two centuries at an average of 58.66. He is also equally good at No 5 where he has scored 742 runs from 18 matches with an average of 53.

The recent show by the Karnataka batter might relieve Indian team management of a few worries especially the injury concerns, which has given it sleepless nights over the past few months. Brief scores: India 356/2 in 50 ovs (Kohli 122 n.o., Rahul 111 n.o.) bt Pakistan 128/8 in 32 ovs (Fakhar 27; Kuldeep 5/25).

Djokovic, the undisputed king of tennis, adds feather to crown

AFP @ New York

Novak Djokovic celebrates with his daughter Tara after defeating Daniil Medvedev of Russia in the men's singles final of the US Open, on Sunday | AP

NOVAK Djokovic, who won his fourth US Open and all-time record-equalling 24th Grand Slam title on Sunday, is driven on through controversy by his determination to be the greatest ever. The Serb's victory over Daniil Medvedev at Flushing Meadows — his third major triumph of 2023 — took him two Slams clear of great rival Rafael Nadal at the top of the list of men's Slam champions.

For 36-year-old Djokovic, it matters to be the best, and he has a strong sense of his historical place in tennis. He also keeps ploughing on through the highs and lows because it is "a great school of life". "I would like to send a message to every young person out there. I was a seven-year-old dreaming that I could win Wimbledon and be world no.1 one day," he has said. "I am beyond grateful but I feel I had the power to create my own destiny. I believe it and feel it with every cell in my body. Be in the present moment, forget about the past. If you want a better future, you create it."

Yet while Nadal and now-retired Roger Federer are widely admired, Djokovic continues to divide opinion. His staggering achievements on the court have often been overshadowed by blunders and missteps off it.

At the French Open this year, he wrote "Kosovo is the heart of Serbia" on a courtside TV camera lens as ethnic tensions were again rising in the Balkans. On court at Roland Garros, he was booed for fist-pumping as semi-final rival Carlos Alcaraz wilted with cramping. Djokovic remains indifferent to the critics. "I don't mind. It's not the first; probably not the last. I'll just keep winning," said Djokovic.

His most controversial moment was his refusal to be vaccinated against Covid, which culminated with Djokovic being deported from Melbourne on the eve of the 2022 Australian Open. His uncompromising stance on the vaccine also saw him barred from the United States and unable to play in last year's US Open. Even before that, the Serb was seemingly doomed never to be held in the same saintly esteem as Federer or Nadal, the undisputed people's champions.

However, the career achievements and resolve of a player who was the first to smash through the $150 million prize-money barrier cannot be doubted. Djokovic, who left Belgrade when he was 12 to train in Munich and escape NATO's bombardment of his home city, captured the first of his 24 majors at the Australian Open in 2008. It was three years before he added his second.

He dropped gluten from his diet, his lithe physique allowing him to chase down lost causes, transforming him into the rubber man of tennis with a rock-steady defence. In 2011 he enjoyed a spectacular year, winning three of four Slams and becoming world number one for the first time. In total, he has 10 Australian Opens, seven Wimbledons, four US Open titles and three French Opens. He is the only man to win all four majors at least three times.

His collection of 39 Masters titles is also a record as is his 389 weeks spent as world number one. And time appears to be on his side in the quest to be considered the greatest. Federer is retired now while Nadal, 37, is sitting out the rest of the season due to a hip injury which might well see him permanently sidelined.

Djokovic also shows few signs of losing his physical edge — 12 of his 24 Grand Slams have come after he turned 30.

Leading by example: Rohit meets ailing fan Percy

FIROZ MIRZA @ Colombo

Rohit Sharma (2nd L) with SL fan Percy Abeysekara (C) & his family | SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

THE last time he cheered for his team by holding a giant Sri Lankan flag was in April 2023 when Ireland toured the Island Nation for a two-match Test series. Percy Abeysekera, 87, travelled to Galle to boost morale of his team. Given the hot and humid weather, Percy got dehydrated making his son Sampath rush to the city and bring him back to Colombo.

Since then, the ardent Sri Lankan fan, also known as Uncle Percy, has been on liquid diet. Given the fact that he is an octogenarian, the recovery is slow. With the 2023 Asia Cup going on in his city, Percy wanted to watch the match from the stands as he has been doing since 1948. He was advised against it a few days back but may get a permission when India take on Sri Lanka here at the R Premadasa Stadium on Tuesday. "Tomorrow we can take him to the stadium for the India-Sri Lanka match. But before that I have to check with his doctor. If the doctor gives permission then we will go there. However, I feel even if he gets permission, he wouldn't be able to stay there for the complete match," son Sampath told this daily.

Percy has been quite popular with visiting teams and India is one among them. Such was his popularity among the Indian cricketers that during their tour of Sri Lanka in 2015, the then captain Virat Kohli even invited him to the dressing room. Rohit Sharma, Kohli's successor, went a step ahead as he visited the Super Fan's home at Katunayake near the Colombo Airport recently to enquire about his health. "Rohit visited our home with two trainers including the throwdown specialist from Sri Lanka. He sang a few rhymes for my father. In fact, we all sang rhymes to cheer him up. My father told Rohit that he has been watching cricket matches since 1948 when he was only 12. The Indian captain said he respects my father for his knowledge of the game and sporting spirit. He also told my dad that he is the best cheerleader he has ever seen as he cheers for both the teams." Sampath said Rohit also informed Percy about the mail he sent to him in 2019. "It was friendly mail I suppose as I never read it," added Sampath.

Speaking on the health issues, the son informed, "He had to be hospitalised for three days after that Ireland Test. He has been on a liquid diet since then. The diet is heavy, having supplements with nutrients, yogurt. His energy intake is okay but because of age he is taking a long time to recover."

Hopefully, Percy will be given an all clear by his doctor so that he can once again wave the Sri Lankan flag and sing the rhymes during the India-Sri Lanka match much to the delight of players and fans alike.

Euro qualifiers: Netherlands down Ireland, Poland beaten in Albania

Netherlands' Wout Weghorst rejoices after scoring against Ireland | AP

WOUT Weghorst scored a second-half winner as the Netherlands beat Ireland 2-1 in Dublin to boost their Euro 2024 qualifying hopes on Sunday, while Poland lost for the third time in qualifying against Albania.

Ronald Koeman's Dutch side had to come back from behind against a spirited Ireland but did enough to stay in the second qualifying spot in Group B behind France.

They are level on points with third-placed Greece who have played an extra match and thrashed Gibraltar 5-0.

The Netherlands were stunned inside the first five minutes when Adam Idah scored a penalty awarded for handball against Virgil van Dijk. But Ireland's momentum was halted in the 19th minute when a mistake from Matt Doherty led to Denzel Dumfries being brought down by home goalkeeper Gavin Bazunu.

Cody Gakpo stepped up to put away the spot-kick and score for the second time in the international break.

Bazunu made a good save to keep out an effort from Donyell Malen before half-time but the Netherlands did take the lead in the 56th minute when Weghorst fired home from Dumfries' header across goal.

Ireland could not summon a late push for an equaliser and remain fourth in the table, six points behind the Dutch with only three matches left.

In Tirana, Poland's bid to qualify for a fifth straight European Championship suffered another blow with a 2-0 loss.

Albania moved to the top of Group E, two points above the Czech Republic and surprise package Moldova. Results: Group B: Greece 5-0 Gibraltar; Republic of Ireland 1-2 Netherlands. Group E: Faroe Islands 0-1; Albania 2-0 Poland. Group G: Montenegro 2-1 Bulgaria; Lithuania 1-3 Serbia. Group H: Kazakhstan 1-0 Northern Ireland. Finland 0-1 Denmark; San Marino 0-4 Slovenia.

Vithya misses Usha's NR by barest of margins

INDRANEEL DAS @ Chennai

FRACTION of a second may mean nothing to mere mortals. A very short blip in the fabric of time. For an athlete, however, that fraction of a second could be the difference between winning and losing; creating and missing a record.

On Monday, when R Vithya checked the giant screen she realised the folly of time. She was shocked. The timing read 55.43 seconds at the Indian Grand Prix 5 in Chandigarh. Only one woman in the country has run faster than her — the legendary PT Usha. Usha's timing was 55.42s and Vithya missed the national record by 100th of a second. Usha missed a medal at the Los Angeles Olympics by the same 100th of a second margin.

Though she was happy, there was a tinge of disappointment as well. "My coach and I were targetting to run below 55s," she said. "I was hoping to run below 55s. I am happy with the performance (personal best) but sad about missing out on the record. Anyways, this performance will give me confidence to break the record next time."

It had not been a great performance curve for Vithya. The Tamil Nadu athlete was part of the national camp for four years as a 400m runner. Two years ago, seeing her career not heading in the desired direction, she left the camp and decided to train on her own. "I thought if I trained alone I would get undivided attention and spoke to my current coach Nahpal Singh Rathore, who said he would train me," said Vithya, who has been training with Rathore for around two years. "Since I am from Coimbatore, my sister (Nithya) and I stay in a rented accommodation to train in Chennai." She also said that she manages her training with the salaries she and her sister get. "Last time I got some money from the state government after winning a medal at the National Games and I have used that money in my training as well."

The 24-year-old athlete said that while in the national camp she was running the 400m but since 2019, she started concentrating on hurdles as well. "We have been preparing for the Asian Games for the last two years," said her coach.

What seems fascinating is her improvement in 400m hurdles this year. At the Federation Cup in Ranchi, she managed 57.51s in May and then in June she clocked 56.01s at Bhubaneswar. And now, she has clocked 55.43s. In short, she has been fast improving. Even in the 400m, she clocked 52.40s, a vast improvement from 53.73s in 2019 while she was part of the national camp training abroad.

The Tamil Nadu athlete is looking forward to the Asian Games and is hoping to finish on the podium. Her sister Nithya too is in the Asian Games squad in 100m hurdles. The Athletics Federation of India included 3000m steeplechase athlete Priti Lamba in the India team for Asian Games based on her performance at the Indian GP 5. The Haryana athlete clocked 9:45.13s in two-woman competition. The cut off was 9.47s. Prachi of Uttar Pradesh was added to the 4x400m team, while the AFI officially announced that sprinter Amlan Borgohain has been added to the team.

MOTION DERAILED

HEMANT KUMAR ROUT @Bhubaneswar

AS change in food habits and stress take a heavy toll on human health, irritable bowel syndrome (IBS) has emerged as one of the most prevalent gastrointestinal disorders in the country. IBS is a chronic condition of the digestive system affecting around 15% of the global population and is second only to the common cold as a reason for absence from work. The condition often begins in young adulthood, with women twice as likely as men to be diagnosed with it.

Around 7-8% of the Indian population suffers from IBS and accounts for 25-50% of all gastrointestinal referral patients, as the condition is fairly common in the community. Although the symptoms may vary over time, the condition is often life-long. It is usually benign and accounts for significant global morbidity and poor quality of health.

The gastrointestinal disorders that affect the large intestine comprise a group of symptoms that vary in severity and duration. Sometimes the symptoms are so strong that it can significantly affect everyday lives causing distress. Despite the high prevalence of irritable bowel syndrome globally, the mechanisms responsible for this condition are poorly understood.

"Microbes in the human gastrointestinal tract are responsible for the maintenance and structural integrity of gastrointestinal mucosal barrier, immunomodulation, metabolism of nutrients and protection against pathogens," said Dr Hemanta Kumar Nayak, additional professor, gastroenterology department, AIIMS, Bhubaneswar.

"Dysfunctions in these mechanisms are linked to a range of conditions, from IBS to functional constipation and functional diarrhoea. It has been estimated that up to a third of patients with functional gastrointestinal disorders have features of more than one, suggesting a common underlying etiology."

Causes and symptoms

Though the exact cause of IBS is not known, there are several factors like muscle contractions in the intestine, issues with nervous system, early life stress and changes in gut microbes play a significant role. Factors that can increase one's chance of having IBS include bad food habits, having a family member with IBS, a history of stressful or difficult life events. "Like the human behaviour, which is unpredictable, bowels too can get irritated and become uncomfortable. The aetiology of the gastrointestinal disorders may be unknown as it is linked to multiple factors. Food habits apart from stress and anxiety that affect physical and mental health and also trigger IBS," said Dr SL Broor, senior consultant (gastroenterology), Indraprastha Apollo Hospitals, Delhi.

Symptoms include cramps, abdominal pain, nausea, gas formation, bloating of the abdomen, poor appetite, weight loss, fatigue, stool with blood/mucus, diarrhoea, constipation. IBS is a chronic condition that has to be managed. "Anxiety and depression have a notable impact on the communication between the brain and the gut. Stressed brain can disrupt gut function since these two systems are closely interconnected. Majority of IBS cases are linked to food intolerance or sensitivity, where specific foods can trigger digestive symptoms, such as lactose and gluten intolerance," said Dr Harish Kareem, senior consultant, gastroenterology department, KIMS-Health, Thiruvananthapuram.There are three subtypes of irritable bowel syndrome - diarrhoea-predominant, constipation-predominant, and mixed having both diarrhoea and constipation symptoms intermittently.

Diagnosis

There is no definite test to diagnose irritable bowel syndrome. Most of the cases can be diagnosed clinically with a complete medical history and physical examination. Few tests can be done to rule out other conditions, such as colon cancer, celiac disease and inflammatory bowel disease. "Rome criteria is used to diagnose IBS. The criteria include belly pain and discomfort averaging at least one day a week in the last three months. This must also occur with at least two of the symptoms - pain and discomfort related to defecation, a change in the frequency of defecation, or a change in stool consistency," said Dr Ayaskanta Singh, senior consultant at SUM Ultimate Medicare.

People having more severe symptoms must be evaluated for weight loss, rectal bleeding, fever, nausea or recurrent vomiting, belly pain, especially if it is not related to a bowel movement or occurs at night, diarrhoea or interrupted sleep and anaemia related to low iron. Diagnostic procedures can include colonoscopy, CT scan and upper endoscopy along with tests for lactose intolerance, bacterial overgrowth and stool tests.

Treatment and management

Treatment of IBS focuses on relieving symptoms so that you can live as symptom-free as possible. With the right strategies, IBS can be successfully managed. A number of natural therapies have been used for treating IBS. It is possible to relieve symptoms of this condition through antispasmodics. Some people find relief by taking probiotics to improve gut bacterial flora.

"Stress management techniques and therapies like cognitive-behavioural therapy (CBT) can be beneficial. Mild symptoms can often be controlled by managing stress and by making changes in diet and lifestyle," said Dr Nayak. People suffering from IBS must avoid food that triggers symptoms and should eat food with high-fibre content, drink plenty of fluids, exercise regularly and get enough sleep. Foods to avoid include high-gas foods, gluten and fermentable oligosaccharides, disaccharides, monosaccharides and polyols (FODMAPs).

If someone experiences bloating or gas, they should avoid items such as carbonated and alcoholic beverages and certain foods that may lead to increased gas. "Some people with IBS report improvement in diarrhoea symptoms if they stop eating food with gluten – naturally found in wheat, barley and rye - even if they don't have celiac disease. People sensitive to certain carbohydrates found in certain grains, vegetables, fruits and dairy products should avoid these foods," said Dr Singh. Lifestyle correction, yoga, meditation, exercise and diet alterations play significant roles in managing the disorder. Usually cutting down on dairy, wheat, nuts, corn, peas, rajma, egg whites and fermented foods works wonders.

Preventive Measures

One of the first lines of defence is to start a gluten-free diet and avoid processed food which contain hidden ingredients to prevent intestinal disorders. Gluten is a protein that can cause irritation and illness in those who are sensitive to it, or those who have celiac disease. Management of irritable bowel syndrome is different for everyone as it depends on how one's body reacts to common symptom triggers and learning to prevent them. People must avoid unregulated use of drugs that can lead to osteoporosis and impact the kidneys.

Physical exercise or yoga to manage stress is a must to prevent IBS. Engage yourself in daily regular physical activity to help regulate bowel function and drink plenty of water to maintain healthy digestion. Limit alcohol and caffeine to prevent irritation in the digestive system.

Irritable bowel syndrome (IBS) is a common disorder that affects the stomach and intestines, also called the gastrointestinal tract

Syndrome

Only a small number of people with IBS have severe symptoms. Some can be controlled by managing diet, lifestyle and stress, while more severe symptoms can be treated with medication and counseling. Symptoms vary, but are usually present for a long time. The most common include:

- Abdominal pain, cramping or bloating related to bowel movement
- Changes in appearance of bowel movement
- Changes in how often you are having a bowel movement
- Other related symptoms include sensation of incomplete evacuation and increased gas or mucus in the stool

Causes

Although the exact cause isn't known, factors that appear to play a role include:

- Muscle contractions in the intestine
- Nervous system: Poorly coordinated signals between the brain and the intestines can cause the body to overreact to changes that typically occur in the digestive process
- Severe infection: IBS can develop after gastroenteritis or bacterial overgrowth in the intestines
- Early life stress: Exposure to stressful events, especially during childhood
- Changes in gut microbes: Examples include changes in bacteria, fungi and viruses, which typically reside in the intestines and play a key role in health

Triggers

Food: A true food allergy rarely causes IBS, but many people have severe IBS symptoms when they eat or drink certain foods or beverages

Stress: While stress may make symptoms worse, it doesn't cause them

Risk factors

- Age
- Gender
- Family history
- Mental health issues

Diagnosis

There's no test to definitively diagnose IBS. A complete medical history, physical exam and tests may be performed to rule out other conditions. After other conditions have been ruled out, one of these sets of diagnostic criteria may be used for IBS:

Rome criteria: The criteria include belly pain and discomfort averaging at least one day a week in the last three months, with at least two of the following: Pain and discomfort related to defecation, a change in the frequency of defecation, or a change in stool consistency.

Type of IBS: For the purpose of treatment, IBS can be divided into four types, based on your symptoms: constipation-predominant, diarrhea-predominant, mixed or unclassified.

Diagnosis

Treatment focuses on relieving symptoms so that you can live as symptom-free as possible. Mild symptoms can be managed by changes in lifestyle and dietary habits:

- Avoid foods that trigger symptoms (high-gas foods, gluten, FODMAPs)
- Eat high-fiber foods
- Drink plenty of fluids
- Exercise regularly
- Get enough sleep

Shibu Arakkal

Fine Art Meets Fine Dining

IT was an afternoon of rare art and fine food when Shibu Arakkal, the son of celebrated artist Yusuf Arakkal, showcased some unseen works of his late father. Dawat-e-Ravivar, a sensory experience married art with cuisine and was organised at Falak, at The Leela Bhartiya City Bengaluru. The selection of works showcased at the event, speaks about Arakkal's humanistic concerns, an individualistic style, and life stories that became an intrinsic part of his legacy and of his own self. The pieces are from Arakkal's seminar series ranging from the late 1960s to the early 2000s and are from Shibu Arakkal's private collection. Meanwhile, a carefully-curated brunch menu by Farman Ali showcased the flavours of Awadhi cuisine to the offerings of the Northwestern Frontier. The guests at the event included business guru Harish Bijoor, photographer Waseem Khan among others.

THE BIG PICTURE

Delving into the question of whether a human cell be reversed into its youthful state and more, this 17-year-old B'luru student, who is one of only two Indians in the race to win a prestigious science competition, has her eyes on a ₹2 crore college scholarship

I specifically want to work with technology, because my grandfather is already losing his mobility, so early detection won't help him as it might others. But the next thing that might help him is artificial intelligence models which could progress anti-aging research. So, that's what I want to be working on, technology at an intersection with biology

— Sia Godika, student

DESE GOWDA

BENGALURU-based student Sia Godika is one of the only two Indians to have made it to the semi-finals of the prestigious annual Breakthrough Junior Challenge, a global science competition for students to inspire creative thinking about science and mathematics. The Class 12 student from Neev Academy, is among the 30 semi-finalists from across the globe who submitted creative short videos explaining difficult concepts or theories in the life sciences, physics, or mathematics.

Godika has chosen to submit her entry on the Yamanaka factors and their importance in anti-aging research. Named after Japanese scientist Shinya Yamanaka, and discovered in the mid-2000s, the Yamanaka factors are special proteins that scientists can use to reprogramme regular cells and turn them into stem cells. Stem cells are the most fundamental cells in the human body, which can turn into many different types of cells. Hence, this Nobel Medical Prize-winning research was an important milestone in medical research that could help treat various diseases in the future, as well as potential research on anti-aging.

The 17-year-old was inspired to pick the subject for her entry from her own familial experiences. "This topic really hits home because cancer and Parkinson's Disease have affected both my paternal and maternal grandparents.

I got to know about Parkinson's Disease when I was very young, and ever since, I've been reading up about anti-aging and age reversal.

I was looking at research that explored how to expand one's health and keep them healthier for a longer period of time. That also led me to work on an app that could potentially detect Parkinson's earlier, which could have a huge impact on the patient's quality of life," Godika adds.

Currently posted on Breakthrough's YouTube and Facebook handles, Godika's entry will need to clear the popular vote contest – garnering enough likes from the public – for it to make it to the final. Following this, a set of judges will have to pick her entry among 15 finalists to receive a grand prize of $200,000 in college tuition, along with $50,000 (₹50 lakh) for her teacher Arka Moulik who mentored Godika, as well as $100,000 (₹1 crore) to Godika's school to set up a science lab. If she wins, Godika wants to use the scholarship to pay for a university in North America and study computer science.

"I specifically want to work with technology, because my grandfather is already losing his mobility, so early detection won't help him as it might others. But the next thing that might help him is artificial intelligence models which could progress anti-aging research. So, that's what I want to be working on, technology at an intersection with biology," she adds.

This one-day exhibition will have members of royal families showcasing the craft, jewellery, and food from their regions

Touch of Royalty

MONIKA MONALISA

THE food they cook, the attire they wear, the crafts they support. This one-day exhibition gives a peek into the lives of nawabs and maharanis. Held by Royal Fables, a community that recreates the regal world of princely India, the show will be held at The Ritz-Carlton, from 11.30am, today.

Anshu Khanna, who founded the community in 2010, says the royal families have always been supporters of arts and artisans. This is the second year that the event is being held in Bengaluru. Khanna promises that this time there will be a wide variety of crafts from different regions. For example, Rani Archana Kumari, from the erstwhile royal family of Badnore, will be showcasing her silverware. "Nandiniy Singh, a young girl from Lucknow, who comes from the family of Thakurs, is going to showcase her brand which does tapestry embroidery on sarees. We also have a brand which is a master craftsmen in chikankari. Some of their sarees are priced between ₹14 and ₹20 lakh. They are known for their shadow work," says Khanna, adding, "Apart from that, Baisa Pushpita Singh Kharwa is bringing back the culture of pearl strings. Royals are known for their pearls."

As much as Indian royals are known for their attire, they are also known for their food. Maharani Shailja Katoch who belongs to the erstwhile royal family of Kangra in Himachal Pradesh is bringing the traditional dham from her region. "We have a pure vegetarian cuisine called dham, which is predominantly rice with various curries. That's what we are serving in the thali today. Traditionally, the meal is eaten in a temple, and is served on a plantain leaf," says Katoch, adding that her personal favourite is maa ki daal. "Although Kangra is known for its vegetarian cuisine, I am also preparing a mutton dish which is from my mother's kitchen. It has distinct flavours and I hope people in South India like it," she adds.

If non-vegetarian food is what you personally like, the dishes prepared by Nawab Kazim Ali Khan from Rampur's personal chef, Mehfuz is something you could try. "Rampur is known for its non-vegetarian dishes, kebabs and mutton curries. Even though our kitchens are predominantly non-vegetarian, the chef is also preparing few vegetarian dishes," says Khan.

First teacher of a British-run institute, one who was reluctant, and another was rebellious — here are stories of three art teachers who made up the Indian art scene

IMPARTING KNOWLEDGE, IMPACTING CULTURE

JITHA KARTHIKEYAN

A good teacher is a blessing in human form. Most of us hold the memory of their influence in our formative years very close to our hearts. The excitement and turmoils of life as a student may have blinded us to their contribution back then with assignments and examinations taking up our wakeful hours but the years into adulthood that followed taught us all the worth of their guidance.

Here's a look at teachers who shone a light on the unconventional path of art for their students in a myriad ways.

THE TEACHER WHO STARTED A MOVEMENT

TEACHERS often guide you to find yourself. But what if the teacher himself became a torch bearer for an entire generation to break away and find themselves? That is exactly what KCS Paniker, the founder of the Madras Art Movement did. Paniker who served as the Principal of the Government College of Fine Arts, Chennai from 1957-66, was a teacher much loved and revered in the institution he headed. In the early sixties, Paniker encouraged his students to think of discovering new languages rather than adhere to the prescribed Western models of modernity. He encouraged them to delve into their regional artistic sensibilities. In 1966, he founded the Cholamandal Artists' Village on the outskirts of Chennai, the first self-sustaining space for artists to come up in India. It was an attempt to break away from the dependence on commercial galleries and he was supported and joined by his students in this movement. Though today, the artists village may not be as it was earlier envisioned to be, it still remains an important site for any artistic discourse in South India, all thanks to the teacher who dared to rebel!

Art history has witnessed the greatness of invaluable teachers who not only shared their wisdom to the students of their time, but also continue to profoundly impact the thoughts of every generation. Let us be grateful for their immense role in shaping our culture, for it has been said that a good education can change anyone but a good teacher can change everything!

THE PIONEER TEACHER

THERE could hardly be a visitor to the Marina Beach who would have missed the Triumph of Labour statue of four men toiling, which brilliantly proclaims what its title aptly suggests. Devi Prasad Roy Chowdhary was not just the creator of such monumental sculptures that defined moments in history, the commemoration of the first Labour Day celebrations at the exact site being the case here, but was also the first Indian to be made the Principal of a British government run institution.

It has been said that life is a full circle. Roy Chowdhary was guided by Abanindranath Tagore, one of the most renowned artists during the period of India's struggle for independence, who also gave him his first lessons in painting. He also trained as a sculptor under Hiranmoy Roy Chowdhary. Despite the motivation these bonds offered, his family did not approve of his foray into art. His zamindar grandfather who headed the family even disinherited him, thus forcing him to take up a job as a painter of backdrops in a theatre. Perseverance and dedication pays and over time, in 1929, he was entrusted with the task of running the Madras School of Art as its first Indian Principal. He spent the next thirty years of his life inspiring his students to open their minds to unconventional ways of thinking and soon, the college that was until then known as an industrial centre underwent an enormous change of image. The great teacher lives on today not only through his works but also in the soul of the works of his students.

THE RELUCTANT TEACHER

WHILE most of us learn from the radiant enthusiasm of our eager teachers, there is also the instance of acquiring knowledge from someone unwilling to part with it. Raja Ravi Varma, considered the Father of Indian art, was the persisting student and Theodore Jensen, the Danish artist was the reluctant teacher. In 1868, the Maharaja of Travancore invited Jensen to embark on a voyage to India to paint a series of portraits, which the latter accepted readily to improve his otherwise modest career. There was considerable excitement in the court well before his arrival as Western art was an uncharted territory for Indian artists of the time. For Ravi Varma, who was patronised by the Maharaja, it was an opportunity of a lifetime to learn new techniques and his joy burst forth.

When Jensen finally set foot on the land, Ravi Varma requested him to take him on as his student, which was flatly refused on multiple occasions. In his earnestness to make him change his mind, Ravi Varma brought a few of his paintings to convince Jensen of his genuine desire to learn. It, however, had the opposite effect as Jensen quickly recognised the boy's skill in the art of portraiture and saw in him a threat to his existence as a commissioned artist. Ravi Varma was not one to give up so easily and brought this refusal up with the Maharaja who ordered Jensen to comply. Ultimately, Jensen agreed to allow the boy to watch while he painted the royal portrait. Sitting in a corner as Jensen worked on a canvas, Ravi Varma observed every detail whilst making his own version of the portrait of the Maharaja with his queen. A month later, when the completed portrait was handed over to the king by Jensen, Ravi Varma surprised the Maharaja by presenting his creation too. The rich vibrancy in the latter's painting was so strikingly visible to all and immediately earned him the displeasure of the Danish artist who the boy had considered his teacher. The reluctant teacher's lessons were not wasted nevertheless!

'TATSAMA TATBHAVA DRAWS STRIKING PARALLELS BETWEEN MEGHANA RAJ SARJA'S CHARACTER AND HER REAL-LIFE PERSONA'

...says debut director Vishal Atreya, as he talks about his transition from Ad filmmaking, his love for crime stories, his working experience, and more

A SHARADHAA

Vishal Atreya's Tatsama Tatbhava not only marks Meghana Raj Sarja's return to the silver screen but also marks director Pannaga Bharana's debut as a producer. The film is set to be out in theatres on September 15. Vishal says, "As they say, 'First impressions last,' and the film's narrative is a labour of love, effortlessly blended with various elements."

Vishal, who initially embarked on this script without foreseeing Meghana Raj's involvement, credited his upbringing by a single mother and a close relationship with his sister for learning to handle women-centric scripts. He fondly recalls, "My mother, my guiding star, provided me with invaluable insights into the daily struggles of strong, independent women. Secondly, I have an affinity for crime thrillers. I believe that Indian audiences like to have an emotional connection, and they like a crime story with a cerebral appeal. This is the essence of Tatsama Tatbhava. The screenplay and structure are experimental, rooted in interrogation rather than investigation." he says.

Interestingly, Tatsama Tatbhava initially caught the attention of PRK Productions and piqued the interest of Appu (Puneeth Rajkumar). Meanwhile, Vishal had intended to seek feedback from various individuals, including Pannaga Bharana. "However, when Pannaga heard the narrative, he not only endorsed it but also took on the role of the producer," says Vishal, adding, "The idea of casting Meghana Raj was Pannaga's suggestion. After a thoughtful meeting, a profound connection was established between us. In hindsight, it became evident that the story had been tailor-made for Meghana, with numerous parallels between her character and real-life experiences. While Tatsama Tatbhava is a work of fiction, the deep resonance it found with its lead actor, Meghana was nothing short of fortunate. It serves as a testament to the power of storytelling, transcending the boundaries of reality."

Apart from Meghana, Vishal had special praise for Prajwal Devaraj's role. "Prajwal will be seen in a different light. It took a lot of courage for the actor to break away from his usual roles and embrace a character-driven performance. It's pure acting; you won't see Prajwal Devaraj, but his character. Both he and Meghana carry the film," says Vishal, who is already in talks with Prajwal Devaraj for his next project.

> I believe that Indian audiences like to have an emotional connection, and they like a crime story with a cerebral appeal. This is the essence of Tatsama Tatbhava
> Vishal Atreya, director

Vishal, primarily an accomplished ad filmmaker, had previously collaborated with well-known brands before venturing into the world of feature films. "The transition from crafting concise ad films to the more expansive world of feature filmmaking presented its own set of challenges. As they say, in advertising, 'brevity is key.' Shifting to feature films, where there's ample room for narrative exploration, was easy, but required a different set of skills," he says.

In addition to the lead actors, the film features Balaji Manohar, Shruti, Mahati, Giriji Lokesh, Arvind Iyer, and other talented individuals in significant roles. According to Vishal, anyone involved in a crime thriller owns their space, with each person playing a prominent role. "Of course, there are a few surprises for the audience, carefully concealed and set to be unveiled on the screen," he concludes.

'Working with Indrajit Lankesh has been a long-held aspiration of mine'

...says Chandu Gowda, who is now a part of the director's latest film, Gauri, which marks the debut of the director's son, Samarjit, and Sanya Iyer

A still from the film

CE FEATURES

Indrajit Lankesh is currently occupied with the shooting of his son Samarjit's debut film, titled Gauri. The movie, which marks the cinematic debut of Sanya Iyer, will also star Chandu Gowda.

Chandu, who made the transition from television serials to the silver screen, has been involved in intriguing projects and has taken on distinctive roles. His last appearance was in the Darshan-starrer Roberrt, and he's enthusiastic about his involvement in this new project. Expressing his excitement, Chandu states, "Collaborating with Indrajit Lankesh has been a long-held aspiration of mine, and it's finally becoming a reality after nine years. I portray a businessman with a negative streak, infusing a unique style and flavour into the character. What makes this role truly special is that, as promised by Indrajit, it allows me to be myself and stand out, giving me the opportunity to exude flamboyance and style on screen." Meanwhile, the actor, who has also established himself in the Telugu industry through serials, eagerly anticipates a significant breakthrough in that language. He reveals, "I have some ongoing discussions in Telugu, and I'll share more details once they are confirmed."

Collaborating with director Suri entails intellectual engagement and alignment with his vision: Charan Raj

CE FEATURES

Charan Raj is currently composing tunes for films across various genres, including romantic dramas, crime thrillers, and underworld subjects. His collaboration with director Suri consistently sparks high anticipation., and their latest project, Bad Manners, is slated for a September-end release. The makers are unveiling the third song today, which is a celebratory track, titled Oga Oga and penned by Jayanth Kaikini. Showcasing Abishek Ambareesh, the song will have vocals by Kapil Kapilan and was filmed in the picturesque locale of Kanakapura.

Discussing the song, Charan explains that it's a distinctive blend of Kannada and English lyrics, with a sprinkling of gibberish in the form of Oga Oga, creating a unique sound experience.

Charan has crafted a total of five songs for the film. Three have already been released, while two more tracks are yet to come, including an introspective piece and a romantic number. Reflecting on his collaboration with Suri, Charan says he has gained a profound understanding of the director's creative process. "We may prepare for one thing, but Suri always approaches it with a different perspective. That's what enriches the experience. His understanding about music is unique, grounded in reality, and tailored to seamlessly integrate the songs into the film's narrative."

Creating the background score for Bad Manners presented its own set of challenges for Charan. "In Suri's films, superficial scoring won't suffice. He always seeks a deeper layer in the background music, demanding careful thought and analysis. Collaborating with Suri entails intellectual engagement and alignment with his vision."

In Bad Manners, Abhishek plays a rugged cop, and the film also stars Rachita Ram and Priyanka Kumar.

Produced by Sudhir KM under the Studio 18 banner, Bad Manners includes stunts choreographed by Ravi Varma, cinematography by S Shekar, and editing by Deepu S Kumar.

Ondanondu Kaladalli Obba Raja makes digital platform debut

CE FEATURES

Ondanondu Kaladalli Obba Raja Idda is an unusual project by director Santhosh Kodenkeri, who is bringing a theatrical play called Ekavyakthi Pradarshanagalu as a feature movie. The film, much like the play, features a single actor portraying multiple characters. Based on Rabindranath Tagore's novel, the film will star writer and theatre artist Yogesh Master, who will take on 24 different roles. The director reveals that this play by Yogesh Master is two decades old and has now been transformed into a film. This experimental attempt, which has garnered praise at various film festivals, made its debut on the Jankar Music Movies digital platform from September 9.

Santhosh Kodenkeri, the film's director, who also produced it under his own Drusti banner, describes it as a work of international standards. "The adaptation from stage to screen was a bold effort by Vision Media, pushing the boundaries of theatrical craft in the context of film. It delved into aspects like makeup, costume changes, lighting, and the nuances of acting in greater depth. In simple terms, it didn't alter the essence of the original stage experiment but instead elevates it through the medium of film," he says.
